WASHINGTON.

The San Domingo Treaty in the United States Senate.

Another Diplomatic Speech by Senator Sumner.

Elaborate Review of the History of the Island.

Present Condition of the Hartmont Loan.

The President's View of Gen. Canby's Course.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The Senate went into Executive Session today on the San Domingo treaty immediately after the reading of the journal. Mr. SUMNER took the floor and made a speech of four hours' duration in opposition to the treaty. Senators describe it as a very able, exhaustive and scholarly effort, and say that it produced a very decided impression. It held the attention of Senators throughout its entire delivery, and some Senators say it was the finest effort they ever heard Mr. SUMNER make. It was historical, biographical and statistical, and was largely devoted to matters not relevant to the question of the present treaty, such as the early French and Spanish struggles for the possession of the island. Mr. SUMNER dwelt with much force upon the alleged chronic condition of war in the Republic, and insisted that annexation would only bring us a fresh crop of rebellions. The chief point in the speech was the fact that Mr. SUMNER opposes all annexation in that quarter. "To the African," says this great apostle of human liberty, "belongs the equatorial belt, and he should enjoy it undisturbed." The speech was evidently intended by its author to do for this treaty what its speeches on the Alaska and the Alabama claims treaties are popularly supposed to have done for those objects, to wit, finish it up without the necessity of further debate. The speech itself disproves the rumors that Mr. SUMNER ever said he would support the treaty, because it has evidently been weeks, if not months, in preparation. During the Executive Session today a dispatch was read giving the latest intelligence from the island concerning the Hartmont loan and the general situation on the island. The dispatch says:

Mr. HARTMONT came on with an offer of $300,000 on the bid bonds, $300,000 to be deposited by SMITH, PAYNE & SMITH, at St. Thomas, and $100,000 by LAWSON & SON, at Havana. The Government informed him that his loan was closed up, the contractors having failed to meet the payments fixed for Dec. 31, 1869. HARTMONT then chartered a schooner to come also to Cuba, whence he can telegraph to his principals, but said he should return via St. Thomas. He hopes Congress will delay annexation, and that the necessities of this Government will then force it to accept more or less of this money. Pending the final action of the United States, the Cabinet and Senate are considering the terms of the various classes of their public debt into intelligible order for final presentation to the Commission as specified by the treaty. They assure me it will not exceed $1,500,000, and I fully believe them. The closest economy is practiced with the money received by Santana, as I have carefully noticed, and not a dollar of it has been used outside of its legitimate purposes. But the Government of Santana is much crippled, there be any serious delay in Congress, it will be much perplexed for means to carry on its work. HATON, the American citizen imprisoned for complicity with the efforts of CABRAL, the insurgent, has been released at the request of Admiral POOR, and will shortly leave for the United States."

Mr. J. P. O'SULLIVAN, bearer of the dispatches from Consul PERRY to the State Department, arrived this morning, and the Secretary of State communicated the dispatches to the Senate during the session. This evening he had a long conference with Senator SUMNER, to whom he gave much information greatly at variance with many of the allegations in that gentleman's speech of today. Mr. SUMNER's argument will be fully answered by Senator MORTON tomorrow, and he will be followed by COLE and CONKLING, also on the same side. It is a curious fact that when BABE visited the United States a few years since Mr. SUMNER introduced him to the floor of the Senate and extended him many courtesies. Today he repudiated him utterly. Mr. J. L. STOTESBURY, of STOTESBURY, THAYSON & CO., is here looking after the interests of the English capitalists who have invested in the Hartmont loan, which is now jeopardized by the refusal of BABE to accept the tender recently made.

THE CADETSHIPS.

The House Military Committee today finished the cadet investigation by reporting to the House that all the further cases should be discontinued, with the declaration that they were not sustained by the evidence. Especially was this the case with the charge against Judge CHURCHILL, of New-York, in whose case the three witnesses who were examined all testified that they knew nothing about it, while the father of the young man appointed made affidavit that no consideration of any character was given for it. The Committee reported certain recommendations in relation to the cadets who are now at the academies, and the parties who negotiated their appointment, and among other things, a resolution depriving the latter of all privileges of the floor and the galleries. The report was adopted and thus the House expels from its position as a spectator in the gallery the man who acted as the intermediary, but committed no crime, while it allows a member to remain on the floor, with equal rights and privileges, who deliberately accepted $900 as a consideration for an appointment. Consistency is a jewel in the House of Representatives, as well as everywhere else.

MR. BUTLER AND THE NEWSPAPERS.

After allowing the matter to slumber for a month, until all interest in it is lost, Mr. BUTLER began his inquisition into the newspapers today. The stenographer of the Home, Mr. E. H. GETTY, Mr. ANDREWS, of the Boston Daily Advertiser, Mr. MCFARLAND, of the Herald corps, your correspondent, and one or two others, were subpoenaed to testify before the Subcommittee of the Judiciary, consisting of Messrs. BUTLER, COOK and ELDRIDGE. Only three of the witnesses were examined. The testimony related to the manner in which the gold pens evidence was obtained, how much was paid for it, and how it came to be printed when it was. The revelations were of very little public interest. The general impression here seems to be that the newspaper part of the investigation is a mere prelude to a broader and more important movement which Mr. BUTLER has set on foot. The resolution under which the investigation is proceeding is very general and indefinite in its scope, and looks like a huge drag-net in which he evidently expects to catch some queer fish. He is empowered to inquire into and report what legislation is necessary to prevent intercourse from the conspiracies of other countries and from the efforts of bribes to secure appointments, &c., &c. There is scarcely anything conceivable with the legislation of Congress or the influences which secure appointments which cannot be covered by a broad interpretation of the resolution, and if Butler goes on he will undoubtedly make the matter interesting.

THE PRESIDENT AND GEN. CANBY.

Gen. JAS. H. PLATT, member from the Petersburg, Va., District, together with a delegation of Virginia Republicans, equally members of the Legislature, called on the President this morning and paid their respects. In the conversation the President corrected an error into which several papers have unwittingly fallen, by saying that Gen. CANBY had no special orders to interfere in the Richmond election, but that his full "positive instructions are to preserve the peace and prevent riot and bloodshed. This is what he did without reference to either party, and he did so and will do so." The President remarked, "he would have considered himself false to official duty." The case is now in the Courts, and the prospect is that the first act of the Virginia Legislature—to wit, the limiting suffrage—will be adjudged a gross and palpable violation of the new Constitution.

THE ARMY BILL.

To-morrow there will be some indication in the Senate as to what will be done with the House Army bill. Mr. WILSON, Chairman of the Senate Military Committee, will introduce a bill which embodies his views, and it will be considered by his Committee. He will adhere to the provisions of the House bill in regard to pay, because investigation shows that it will not reduce the pay of the army, but on the contrary will materially increase it. His bill will provide that all officers who may voluntarily retire before the 1st of September next, and who have been five years in service, receive one year's extra pay; those who have been over five and under ten years in service, one and a half years' extra pay; and those who have been in service over ten years, two years' extra pay. The bill will also propose a further reduction of the rank and file by the number of seven thousand men. This provision, it is believed, will be opposed by the President, the Secretary of War and the General of the Army, on the ground of the absolute necessity now existing for all the troops on hand. The bill will further differ from the House bill on the subject of the Board which is to examine all the officers of the army. Mr. WILSON proposes that the Board shall be organized, but that only officers whose services the Secretary of War and the General of the Army may deem it proper and necessary to dispense with shall be ordered before it for examination. This, it is estimated, will result in disposing of about one hundred and fifty officers, and is believed to be more just than to muster out several hundred without regard to services or merit.

THE TARIFF.

The tariff drags its slow length along the Committee of the Whole. It was not reached until nearly 4 o'clock today, when Mr. ALLISON took the floor and spoke about half an hour, hardly getting into the merits of the question when the hour for recess arrived. He will finish to-morrow, and from the indications the argument will be a very able one. Mr. KELLEY, of Pennsylvania, will follow him on the side of the tariff. To-night speeches were made by Gen. MORGAN, of Ohio, Mr. HAYS, of Alabama, and Mr. BURCHARD, of Illinois, all against a high tariff. The speech of the latter gentleman was especially notable as a production bristling all over with the facts which the agricultural producers are now talking about.

PACIFIC AND OTHER MAIL SERVICE.

The Senate Committee on Post-offices and Post-roads, acting on some of the suggestions in the President's message yesterday on the subject of reviving the commerce of the country, agreed this morning to report a bill granting a subsidy to the Pacific Mail Steam-ship Company, between San Francisco and China, of $1,000,000 per annum, and doubling the mail steam-ship service. An agreement was also agreed to requiring the Company to build at the rate of one ship each year, recommending that such ships be of iron. There is as much variety of opinion on the message as there are interests included. Some members of Congress believe that the Maine shipping interest can never be revived, and that it has passed away from them forever. Free trade in ships is agitated by a great many, but has, of course, its bitter opponents. The free traders will endeavor to have the present law, as amended so as to allow the registration of foreign vessels on the payment of seven or eight per cent. on the tonnage, instead of twenty as it now stands. But there is not much prospect that this will prevail. This Committee also agreed to report a bill providing for the closing of all mail contracts in May each year, so as to prevent, if possible, the system of sham bids, by which the Government is annually swindled out of large sums of money. Mr. WM. H. WEBB appeared before the Committee in advocacy of a subsidy to a steam-ship Company to run to Australia via the Sandwich Islands.

THE ALASKA FISHERIES.

Mr. DIXON, Chairman of the Commerce Committee of the House, will endeavor to secure the consideration of the Alaska Seal Fisheries bill at an early day. The Committee will not be called for several weeks to come, and the bill in question, which has already passed the Senate, is of pressing importance. It authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to make a contract with proper persons to carry on the trade, the season for which is now approaching, and our interests there will suffer if the proper legislation is not made. The Government so far has derived no revenue whatever from these fisheries. They will probably be worth $150,000 per annum.

SECURITIES OF NATIONAL BANKS.

A Committee under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, which has been engaged in examining the securities of national banks in the custody of Gen. SPINNER, has completed the task and reports that the books and securities on deposit agree in every particular, and that the present system of checks and balances is excellent. It appears from the report that there are deposited with the Treasurer, to secure the circulation of 1,634 banks, a total of $352,104,300 in bonds. To secure the Government deposits in 177 banks designated as depositories, there are deposited with the Treasurer bonds amounting to $17,000,000.

A PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

A great deal of amusement was created in the House today by the fact that Hon. SAMUEL HOOPER, of Massachusetts, felt it necessary to rise to a personal explanation, in order to relieve himself from the responsibility of the polygamy speech of his namesake, Delegate HOOPER, of Utah, which had been published to him by a Philadelphia paper. The paper in question had rebuked him editorially in most malignant terms for advocating such doctrines. The article was read, and the name of Mr. HOOPER's namesake, rather to a number of Mr. HOOPER's views, caused a peal of laughter at his expense, which he heartily enjoyed. When it was observed that he was closeted with the members of the Ways and Means Committee to Salt Lake last Saturday, the House and galleries roared with laughter. The editor promises a prompt retraction.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE.—WASHINGTON, Thursday, March 24.

Immediately after the reading of the journal, on motion of Mr. SUMNER, the Senate went into Executive Session.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

On motion of Mr. LYNCH, the special message of the President in relation to American contractors was taken from the Speaker's table, and referred to the Committee on that subject.

THE GALVESTON BALLS—FINAL REPORT.

Mr. LOGAN, from the Military Committee, made a passing on the subject of contractors, which occurred. It seems that the Committee had taken evidence in a great many instances in appointing cadets outside of the district of the appointing member, and in several cases money had been paid to members of Congress for appointments, but, except in the cases already noted upon, none appeared to have been paid to the members, and that the false proxies were committed by persons who had no hand in supporting the cases to the House. The Committee were therefore of opinion that it might properly report in this general way, and stating that it had discharged its duty entirely, and without prejudice against or partiality for any member of Congress or officer of the Government. It accordingly asked that its Committee be discharged from further consideration of the subject.

The Committee also reported a bill making a new four nominations on the part of the cadet in the district from which he had resigned respectively.

Mr. WOOD inquired whether any retroactive effect was intended by the bill?

Mr. LOGAN replied that it was negative.

The Committee also reported the adoption of resolutions as follows:

First—Declaring that Gen. SCHOFIELD, one of the Judges Advocate of the army, be authorized to act as a witness for the defense, as stated in Hickey's court-martial, and directing that the evidence in the case be passed to the judge of the Secretary of the Interior, and that he be requested to remove Commissary Hall for neglect of official duty, and to have so much of the proceeds of the sale of the property of the Commissary Hall, by auction, paid to the Treasury.

Third—That the evidence showing that Commander URSINE, of the navy, had placed the sum of $1,200 in the hands of M. D. LAMOT, with a view of procuring the appointment of his son to the Naval Academy, be referred to the Secretary of the Navy, with a request that he convene a Court-martial for the purpose of trying Commander URSINE for conduct unbecoming an officer.

The bill coming up first for discussion,

Mr. FORNEY expressed the opinion that the provision requiring a two-year residence in the district might work harshly, particularly in large cities like New-York and Philadelphia, that embrace several Congressional Districts, and where a man moving from one side to the other may change his Congressional District. There was a great many people in New-York and Brooklyn who hardly ever lived two years in the same district.

Mr. BUTLER suggested that the term of residence be fixed at one year instead of two years.

Mr. LOGAN said he was willing to have that amendment offered.

After further discussion the term was reduced to one year, and the bill as amended was passed.

The resolution referring to Commander URSINE then came up for consideration and gave rise to a long discussion. Messrs. VOORHEES and STARKWEATHER taking the ground that the proposed notion was too harsh on Commander URSINE, who in employing and paying an agent to procure an appointment for his son did not thereby contemplate the improper use of the money. Mr. STARKWEATHER spoke of the long service of this officer, whose father and grandfather had died in the naval service, and was a descendant of the WASHINGTON family, which warranted honorable conduct on his part. In the course of the discussion it was stated by Mr. LOGAN that the money had been paid by Commander URSINE, had been used by his agent, LAMOT, in buying off a boy who had received the appointment from Mr. HOGE, of South Carolina, whereupon young URSINE was appointed from that district by the Secretary of the Navy.

Finally, Mr. GARFIELD offered an amendment to make the resolution request the Secretary of the Navy to convene a Court-martial for the purpose of trying Commander URSINE for the conduct stated. The amendment was rejected—yeas 71, nays 114, and the resolution was adopted.

The resolution in reference to Gen. SCHOFIELD came up. Mr. MAYNARD pleaded for the measure as a foreigner, a Hungarian by birth, one who had been conspicuous in the courts, and had attracted the attention of Gen. HOLT when Commissioner of the Patent-office, and who had served subsequently with distinction in the army. And he reminded the House that the report had been given out for nearly years that opportunities for the exchanges could be procured by means of money.

Messrs. SHERMAN, DAWES, LOGAN, MORGAN and other members, repudiated in strong terms the idea conveyed in the remarks of Messrs. MAYNARD and KELLEY, that the sale of cadet-ships was in accordance with common custom, a custom of the Hunters. Finally, the resolution was adopted; and the resolution excluding from the floor and galleries persons proved to have been guilty of an attempt to corrupt members was also adopted, and the report itself was adopted.

EDUCATION IN THE TERRITORIES.

Mr. MCNEELY, from the Committee on Education and Labor, reported bills to authorize the Legislative Assemblies of Territories to pass general acts of incorporation, and for educational purposes. Passed.

THE TARIFF BILL.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. WHEELER in the chair, on the Tariff bill.

Mr. COOK addressed the Committee in favor of a reduction of the tariff on lumber. Besides the reduction of the duty on lumber, the farmers also wanted a reduction on salt and steel, and coal and pig iron. The great agricultural interest of the country was not represented here by paid lobbyists, but the time when this interest would be heard and felt was coming. There could be no real prosperity in the country when its greatest producing interest was depressed and overburdened.

Mr. JOHNSON made an appeal on behalf of the farming and wine-growing interests of California. Among the hills grew the grapes of wine. It elevated him to a level with the gods and made him "dwell in mansions in the skies." In all ages of the world to sit down under the vine and fig-tree had been the ambition of those wishing happy repose; the juice of the grape made men love one another and raised them from accursed earth to sit in companionship with the gods where they saw all below clothed in most surpassing colors, and the heaven's illimitable outstretching fields of never-ending beauty and of endless joy. After these and other encomiums on good wine he pleaded in the interests of the wine-growers and farmers of California.

Mr. MCCULLOCH, a protectionist, a protective tariff, and complained particularly of the duties on iron, steel, cotton, cloth, woolen goods, &c.

Mr. ALLISON, member of the Committee on Ways and Means, spoke in favor of the reduction of taxes. He said that those who were engaged in the production of pig iron in rude forms were amply protected, but the vast number of artisans working in iron were not protected by the existing tariff. On the contrary, the tariff was to them a burden, or was a burden to the consumers of their products. The agricultural interest was not protected directly; and the freight from Chicago to Boston was more than twice the amount of duty imposed upon the agricultural products of Canada. The mechanics and artisans of the country were not directly protected, and that class comprised a much larger number of the population than were those within the protected classes. He denied the assumption that protection, ultimately, cheapened the article protected. It was certainly not true in respect to iron. The tariff had increased the cost of iron to ship-builders, and if so it certainly must have increased it to other consumers.

Mr. KELLEY remarked that the cost of foreign iron was tending up, and that of American iron was tending down, and asked Mr. ALLISON to what he attributed that?

Mr. ALLISON said he was proving that the tariff increased the cost of production, and again referred to the condition of ship-building; but he regarded the bill reported by the Special Committee on that subject as unjust to the people, because it allowed fifteen dollars a ton to be paid back for the American iron used in a ship. Why should the people of the United States be called on to pay such bounty? That bill confusedly showed that an American ship could not be built or sailed as cheaply as foreign ships could be, and that was attributable to the tariff. The bounty, proposed to be given to American ship-owners and builders, was to apply not only to the vessels employed in the foreign trade, but also to those employed in the coastwise trade, where there was no foreign competition. He for one was not prepared to vote for such bounty. His point, however, was that that bill confessed that the duty on iron increased the cost of iron to the ship-builder, and if it did it also increased it to all other consumers of iron.

Mr. WASHBURN, of Wisconsin, asked him if he believed, that if, with the duty taken off iron, iron would be as cheap five years hence as it was now.

Mr. ALLISON replied that was a question of arithmetic. He did not want the duties taken off iron. He only wanted them reduced, and he had not said that the cost of iron was increased in proportion to the duties, but only that it was increased to the consumer by the tariff. He confessed that it was impossible to raise the necessary amount of revenue without protection, but he argued that the tax should be so levied as to take out of the pockets of the people the least possible amount of money, and above that which it placed in the National Treasury.

Before Mr. ALLISON had concluded his speech, the House, at 4½, took a recess until 7½, the evening session to be for general debate on the Tariff bill.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session of the House met in Committee of the Whole, Mr. WHEELER in the Chair, and was addressed by Mr. HAZELTON in advocacy of protection to the pottery interest, which he did not deem sufficiently protected. He asked an ad valorem duty of fifty per cent on pottery. After some further debate the House adjourned.

GENERAL TELEGRAMS.

EUROPE.

Fourth Day of the Rochefort Trial—An Exciting Scene—The Prince Violently Interrupted by the Prosecutor—Noirville Incapacitated for Duty.

TOURS, March 24.—The High Court of Justice resumed the trial of Prince PIERRE BONAPARTE at 11 o'clock this morning. Witnesses for the defense were examined to show the previous bad character of NOIR and FONVIELLE, and the good character of the accused. Their testimony on the first point was conclusive. Other witnesses were brought up to testify to the good conduct of the Prince as an officer. While one of the lawyers for the prosecution was conducting the cross-examination of the witnesses, he used an expression offensive to the Prince, who violently interrupted the proceedings, and, turning to the lawyer, denounced him and his party as a faction. FONVIELLE, terribly excited, rose and called the Prince an assassin. This caused great confusion among the spectators and in the Court. FONVIELLE was forcibly taken out by two gendarmes. The Procureur-General demanded the punishment of FONVIELLE. The Court decided to postpone the consideration of the matter until the end of the sitting. M. FLOQUET, then commenced argument for the prosecution. He review ed the lives of NOIR, FONVIELLE and Prince BONAPARTE; pointed out the differences in their characters, dwelt on the reputation of the Prince as a man of violence; asserted that he was known to have killed four men, and related how he left the military service without permission in 1849, for which LOUIS NAPOLEON dismissed him from the army. At this point the Prince became greatly excited, and exclaimed that there was a plot to aggravate him. He was severely reprimanded by the Court for interrupting the counsel. At the conclusion of the arguments for the prosecution, M. FONVIELLE was brought in, and the presiding Judge sentenced him to ten days' confinement for contempt of Court. The closing arguments will be continued to-morrow.

Another Strike at Le Creusot—The High Court at Tours—The Conspiracy Prisoners to be Tried.

LONDON, March 24.—The strike of the workmen at Le Creusot, France, continues. Several demonstrations have been made by the men, which so far have been harmless; but the military and Police are active. It is thought that political feeling is involved in this second outbreak of labor at Le Creusot. Some arrests have already been made.....A newspaper correspondent at the High Court at Tours comments on the evident purpose of all the witnesses to suppress or distort facts.

TOURS, March 24.—T'e Procureur-General has been notified that the cases of the persons accused of conspiracy against the State and the life of the Emperor will come before the High Court of Justice now in session here.

PARIS, March 24.—The metallic reserve in the Bank of France has increased 19,000,000 francs during the week ending yesterday.

Another Submarine Cable Laid—Fast Trip of a Clipper Ship—The Pope and the American Bishops—Railroad Enterprise in Greece.

LONDON, March 24.—The cable from Aden, Arabia, through the Red Sea to Suez, Egypt, has been successfully laid, thus completing a direct submarine line from Bombay to Suez. The completion of the Indo-European line was announced a few days ago. This is still an other route, and is destined to be the thoroughfare of the far-east business. The line will be open to the public in a day or two.....The turretted ship Captain made her second trial trip yesterday. She went a long way out to sea, and experienced rough weather. The trip was successful beyond all expectations.....Advices received here from Sydney, Australia, announce that the clipper ship Patriarch made the voyage from England to that port in sixty-seven days—the shortest passage on record.....It is still asserted that the American Bishops at Rome refuse to assent to the proclamation of Papal infallibility, and that every effort to conciliate them has proved futile.....The weekly returns of the Bank of England show an increase of $138,000 in bullion since last report.

ATHENS, March 24.—The Greek Government have authorized the construction of a railroad from Athens over the isthmus and along the Gulf of Corinth to some point on the western coast of Greece.

STUTTGART, March 24.—The King has accepted the resignation of the Ministry. A new Cabinet has been formed with KOHER, President of the Council; Col. VON SUCKOW, Minister of War, and the Counsellor VON SCHEURLEN, Minister of the Interior.

The British Parliament—An Indignant Denial—General News.

LONDON, March 24.—In the House of Lords this evening the Consolidated Fund bill was passed. The Habitual Criminals' bill was considered, after which the House adjourned. In the House of Commons Mr. MONSELL, Under Secretary for the Colonial Department, read dispatches sent to the Government of the Canadian Dominion. They contain no intimation that England is prepared to concede colonial independence. Mr. GLADSTONE indignantly repelled the charge that he now repudiates solemn promises in favor of Ireland, made during the canvass in Lancashire. The House went into Committee on the bill for enforcing the laws in Ireland. An amendment reducing the term of imprisonment for carrying arms to one year was rejected.....In the divorce case of WALKINS vs. WALKINS, a decree has been granted, the defendant being in America with LYDIA THOMPSON.....The new Clasper boat for the Cambridge crew is unusually low, but does well. The crew made thirty-nine strokes a minute today. WILLIAMS trains the Oxonians in the boat they used last year.

CANADA.

The "National Policy"—Resolutions in Nova Scotia in Favor of Reciprocity with the United States.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 24.—In the Legislature last night Mr. DICKIE, of Kings, moved a series of resolutions, which were made the special orders of the day for Friday week. They review the history of the Reciprocity treaty and its abrogation by the United States, and set forth the loss and injury sustained by Nova Scotia by that action of the United States; that their assent to confederation with the other British Provinces was invited as a sure means of securing a new Reciprocity treaty with the United States; that three years have elapsed without an effort to obtain a renewal of the treaty, but, on the contrary, a so-called "national policy" was proposed, which, if carried out, would prove more injurious to them; therefore,

Resolved, That while fully appreciating the adoption of a policy unusual in itself and at variance with the practice of the parent State, this House feel it their duty to emphatically declare that the time selected, when the subject of abolishing or reducing the duty on exports from this province is engaging the attention of the American Congress, is singularly inopportune and calculated to defeat the efforts now being made for the admission on better terms of our coal, fish, agricultural and other products to American markets.

Resolved, Second, That the attempt by the Dominion Government to impose a duty of ten cents against the United States, which is the parent, and as experience has shown, the only reliable market for the staple productions of this province, may possibly lead to the imposition of similar taxes on the chief exports of this country, to the great injury of the agricultural, fishing, milling, lumbering and shipping interests.

A Steamer Snagged in the Arkansas River—The Boat and Cargo Lost.

MEMPHIS, March 24.—The steamer Golden, hence for Little Rock, snagged and sank to her bulkhead at Harris Cross, ninety miles above the mouth, in the Arkansas River, yesterday morning. No lives were lost. The boat and cargo are a total loss. She was owned by the Memphis and Arkansas River Packet Company, and was valued at $13,000. She was insured in the Southern, of Fishkill, and Enterprise of Cincinnati, for $9,000 each.

CUBA.

The Sale of the Island—Mass-Meeting in Havana—A Cuban League Formed in Boston.

HAVANA, March 24.—A mass-meeting was held last night, which was called for the purpose of taking some action on the position lately assumed in regard to Cuba by a portion of the Madrid Press. About 1,200 Spaniards and many Cubans were present. Resolutions were adopted protesting against any policy which involves the sale of the Island of Cuba to the United States.

BOSTON, March 24.—The friends of Cuban independence held a meeting at the Parker House last night, and organized the Massachusetts Branch of the Cuban League of the United States. Officers were chosen as follows: President, F. O. PRINCE; Secretary and Treasurer, Gen. WILLIAM H. MCCARTNEY. CHARLES LEVI WOODBURY presided at the meeting.

FIRES.

Destructive Fires and Loss of Life in Illinois—Heavy Losses in Missouri.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 24.—Fifteen business houses at Dwight, Ill., were burned last night. HAGGERTY & BAKER, ISAAC HARRIS, NEWELL & FLAHERTY, KOCKLIN & CO. and G. A. SEYMOUR were the principal sufferers. The loss is from $50,000 to $75,000; partially insured.....A dwelling house in Dunleith, Ill., occupied by a French family, named OGIA, was burned at midnight last night. Mr. OGIA and his son, aged eight years, perished in the flames.

ST. LOUIS, March 24.—The loss by the fire at Louisiana, Mo., on Tuesday night was $25,000, and the insurance $5,000.

A Steamer Burned in Maryland—Losses in the West.

BALTIMORE, March 24.—The steamer Delphia, from Philadelphia to Richmond, was burned to the water's edge, on Tuesday morning, at Patuxent, Md. The crew barely escaped with their lives.

ST. LOUIS, March 24.—The drug-store of A. BESSING, at St. Joseph, Mo., was destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss is $12,000; insured for $6,200 in the Ætna; $2,500 in the Republic, of Chicago; $2,500 in the Underwriters', of New-York, and $2,500 unknown.

MILWAUKEE, March 24.—A fire occurred in the sail-loft of ARMSTRONG & TALLMADGE, which damaged the goods and building to the amount of $12,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24.—Four spans of the Central Pacific Railroad Bridge, over the American River at Sacramento, were burned last night. The Company will provide a temporary bridge for passenger trains, to be completed within three days. In the meantime arrangements have been made for ferrying passengers and baggage over the river, so that little or no delay will be occasioned.

THE WEST.

Execution in Ohio—The Prisoner Confesses to Have Committed Fourteen Murders.

WHEELING, West Va., March 24.—THOMAS D. CARR was executed in the County Jail at St. Clairsville, Ohio, this afternoon, for the murder of LOUISA C. FOX, near St. Clairsville, in January, 1869. No one was admitted to the jail but the Sheriff and his assistants and the newspaper reporters. CARR was cool and collected throughout, but the recklessness which characterized his conduct during the trial had entirely disappeared. By his own confession he is believed to have been the greatest murderer ever born in this or any other country. He acknowledges having perpetrated fourteen cold-blooded murders, and made five unsuccessful attempts to take life before the killing of Miss FOX. His execution was the first that ever occurred in Belmont County, and caused great excitement.

Defense of Gen. Sheridan—A Triple Murder in Ohio—The Recent Railway Collision—Two More Victims—Miscellaneous.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 24.—The Chicago Journal today contradicts the statement that Gen. SHERIDAN is now desirous of being relieved from command of the Western Department and be assigned to duty elsewhere, because Col. BAKER has not been and will not be promoted as he requested. Gen. SHERIDAN is not desirous of being taken from the command of this Department, and has never intimated anything of the kind; neither has he asked the promotion of Col. BAKER.....A special dispatch from Manchester, Ohio, says: On Saturday last, while J. C. RHINEHART, a school teacher, and E. J. The Utah Polygamy Bill—What is Thought of it in Salt Lake City.

SALT LAKE CITY, March 24.—The News, speaking of the passage of the Cullom bill by the House, says:

"The striking out of the five sections rids it of several of its most repulsive features. They were too strong for Congress to swallow. Many thought the House would never pass this bill in any form, and that if it did the clear invasion of the Constitution would kill it. We cannot say what the Senate will do with it. But this we can say, if it passes, and then should receive the signature of the President and become a law, it will not meet the wishes or answer the expectations of its authors. Personally we care not what action is taken. Persecution drives from township to township, and soon to a Territory. It has made us strong, thrifty and fearless. The most valuable experience we possess today we gained through persecution, and we do not dread its effects. If men wish to make Mormonism dread, let them persecute it. Pass the Cullom bill, and if this fails, cease arms and attempt to fight, drive and exterminate, and then watch the results. If it should pass the Senate and be signed by the Executive, we may then discuss its merits and probable effect."

The Steam-Ship City of Brussels—A Note from Mr. Dale.

HALIFAX, March 24.—The City of Brussels, which touched here on Tuesday, had but one small-pox patient on board, (Mr. STELTON, a Boston merchant,) who was put ashore here. The steamer sailed again for New-York this morning.

[Mr. DALE sends the following:]

The statement published by a Toronto paper that the steam-ship City of Brussels called at Halifax for the purpose of landing small-pox patients is not correct. Capt. KENNEDY reports strong north-west gales, (the equinox,) and fearing that he might not have sufficient coal to reach New-York, called at Halifax and there received 400 tons. Yours truly,

JOHN G. DALE, Agent.

The Southern Pacific Railway—A Company Formed.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24.—The Southern Pacific Railway Company has filed a certificate of incorporation. The capital of the Company is twenty millions, and its object is to construct a road from San Francisco to San Diego, to connect with the Southern Pacific and El Paso Railroad near the Colorado River. Gen. ROSECRANS is the President of the Company.

ALBANY.

The Democratic Voters Still for War—Tweed Unsheaths his Blade—Senatorial Indecisions of the O'Brien Democracy—The New Metropolitan Police Commission—Mass-Meetings and Fast-Wardens—A Meaning Fusionist.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Thursday, March 24, 1870.

The war in the Democratic camp has broken out afresh, and is to be prosecuted with fiercer and more unrelenting bitterness. Grand Sachem TWEED has unsheathed his blade, and this morning informed the "Young Democracy," as represented in the person of GERRY, that "he was now on the war path, and prepared to take the scalps of his enemies wherever he found them." He telegraphed to the New-York papers this he "had not resigned his place as Deputy Street Commissioner, and did not intend to do so," and should hereafter hold the men who had created the divisions in the Democratic Party responsible. With regard to TWEED's resignation, the facts are that he told MCLEAN before he left Albany that he was willing to resign if such a course would tend to harmonize the party; but after learning that his resignation was demanded by his personal enemies, and that his dismissal had already been agreed upon and written out before consulting him, he changed his tactics from conciliation to defiance, and now proclaims "war to the knife," which, in his case, means something more than the same phrase did when used by the organ of the O'Brien Democracy. It would not be so all strange if the Street Commissioner's office were wiped out of existence before the end of the session, as intimated in my dispatch last night. The office has long been a reservoir of corruption and a sink of iniquity, and if the quarrels of the Democracy shall result in wiping it out and creating a better department in its place, the public will be the gainers.

THE ALDERMEN.

The Board of Aldermen, too, might share the same fate with great advantage to the City, if its successor were elected, as is now proposed, on a general ticket. This Board has lately given in its adherence to the O'Brien Democracy, and its action in passing the new Fifth-avenue pavement job over the Mayor's veto, shows how much confidence was to be placed in the professions of reform so ostentatiously made by the new party that seeks to get control of the City.

OPENING OF THE FIGHT IN THE SENATE.

After TWEED's declaration of war to GERRY this morning, the latter introduced the following resolutions:

Whereas, The second section of chapter 329 of the laws of 1869, being "An act in relation to the Commissioners of Metropolitan Police of the Metropolitan Police District of the State of New-York," passed April 15, 1869, provides that "Any one of the said Commissioners, or any member of the police force, who shall, after qualifying in office, accept any additional place of public trust or civil emolument, or who shall during his term of office be publicly nominated for any office elective by the people, and shall not within ten days succeeding the same publicly decline the said nomination, shall be in either case deemed thereby to have resigned his commission and to have vacated his office;" and whereas, HENRY SMITH, of the City and County of New-York, was in last October nominated for said Supervisor for said county while holding the office of Police Commissioner in and for the Metropolitan Police District, and did not within ten days thereafter resign his commission as Police Commissioner, as provided by the laws of the State aforesaid, and yet THOMAS C. FIELDS, Mayor, permits in holding both positions, in violation of the express intent of law; therefore,

Resolved, (if the Assembly concur,) That the office of Police Commissioner now held by HENRY SMITH, in violation of the statutes of the State, be and is declared vacant.

Resolved, (if the Assembly concur,) That the two Houses of the Legislature pass this joint resolution on Wednesday, the 6th day of April next, for the purpose of electing a Metropolitan Police Commissioner for the Metropolitan Police District, in the place of HENRY SMITH, whose office is thus made vacant.

Giving rise to debate they were ordered to lie over under the rule. They will amount to nothing except to establish the impotent rage of the vanquished Young Democracy.

ANOTHER SHOT.

The O'Brien Senators also succeeded in getting an amendment attached to JACOBS' bill (now in the Senate) to elect inspectors and canvassers by the people of Brooklyn, so as to cover New-York. This was done to make provision for the anticipated failure of a similar bill introduced by Mr. KIERNAN in the Assembly. The Brooklyn members are regarded as making a great mistake by thus permitting themselves to be mixed up in the New-York fight. The result will probably be to kill their own bills.

NORTON'S POPGUN.

MIKE NORTON's bill to wipe out the Board of Supervisors, by consolidating the City and County Government of New-York, also got reported "for consideration" in the Senate this morning, and is intended as another slap at TWEED. This bill has some merit, as it prohibits any man from holding more than one office, or from receiving any perquisites beyond his salary; but under the present condition of "war to the knife," and in view of the motives that prompt its author in pushing it just at this time, it will probably share the same fate as the other futile attempts of the Young Democracy to carry out their measures in the Legislature.

PORT-WARDENS AND HARBOR-MASTERS CONFIRMED.

The Senate had another Executive Session today, and, contrary to general expectation, confirmed the entire list of Harbor-masters and Port-wardens sent in by the Governor on Tuesday. The following are the names of the lucky fellows:

Port-wardens—Moses H. Richards, Abram G. Wittson, Ab. L. Brewer, John C. Eliot, Henry S. Burdick, Alex. D. Britton, Wm. Seebuck, Ed. L. Carey, Chas. E. Macomber.

Captains of the Port of New-York—Jas. B. Jones.

Harbor-masters—Cornelius C. Ellis, Daniel Hart, Thos. H. Ferris, Jno. Brice, Jas. G. Spydam, Wm. J. Passmore, Simeon Sammis, Jas. Hall, Jno. H. Bell, Jas. W. Brown, Bernard Kenney.

THE BRAINS OF ERIE.

JAY GOULD, the Mephistopheles of the Erie Ring, who monopolizes the larger share both of its brains and its principles, unburdened himself before the Senate Railroad Committee yesterday afternoon in support of the fulsomely lax which enables him and his confederates to perpetuate their usurpation. His plausible rigmarole has already been sent you in full by telegraph. Mr. BURT, the representative of the English victims of GOULD's wholesale robbery, was present, and in a few brief words punctured the bubble of sophistry and falsehoods of the great Erie King, so that at the conclusion of the hearing the argument and the facts were where they were at the beginning—all on the side of the stockholders and against the Erie Ring. But what signifies all this talk and these repeated hearings before the Committee? Everybody knows that a clique of irresponsible adventurers, by fraud and treachery, by bribery and corruption, both legislative and judicial, have succeeded in robbing the stockholders of one of the largest corporations of the world of their property and appropriating it to their own use, and the simple question now is whether they shall be allowed to perpetuate their villainy by additional bribery and corruption of the

A BATTLE OF THE BOOKS. Recorded by an Unknown Writer for the Use of Authors and Publishers. Edited and published by Gail Hamilton. Cambridge: Riverside Press, New-York: For sale by HURD & HOUGHTON. 1876.

Dean SWIFT's title and an elaborately-wailed literary form have been selected by the author of this curious book for the purpose of conveying to the public the fact that [illegible] with the former publishers, and thinks herself wronged by them. Perhaps she was, and certainly there is much in her volume that gives the unsophisticated reader that impression. Still, we cannot but think it would have been better to have told the story in a straightforward way, without circumlocution or disguise. The difficulty with the case, as Gail Hamilton puts it, is that one cannot know where fact begins or fancy ends, or vice versa. Hence the reader is hardly in a position to judge of the merits at issue or to express sympathy with the writer for the implied hard treatment to which she has been subjected. If her parts statements are made, in any considerable instance, they can hardly be put to the unfailing test of a stage. A key to this "Battle of the Books," thrown into a single brief explanatory chapter, would probably do more for the object that the writer has in view, than the whole work is likely to accomplish as it stands.

New Magazines.

The pièce de résistance of the April Atlantic is Mr. PARTON's "Reviving Virginia." It is, however, a little touchier and less piquant than much of the farce he has accustomed us to expect from him. On the other hand, it is very carefully prepared and, unlike the most intellectual sustenance found in similar pieces, it will not palt with keeping. It contains, in truth, evidences of much research and some suggestions which, if they do not strike us in every instance as altogether practical, are yet worthy of serious consideration. Mr. BAYARD TAYLOR supplies in this number Part IV. of his "Joseph and His Friends." Mr. TROWBRIDGE takes those who will go with him "Through the Woods to Lake Superior." Mr. DE FOREST gives one of the best bits of fiction we have seen from him in "The Lefson Tragedy;" a remarkably bright and entertaining paper from an anonymous writer is offered in "The English Governess at the Siamese Court;" Mr. BURT G. WILDER presents an odd mixture of mathematics, physiology and comparative anatomy in "Right and Left;" Mr. CHARLES LANMAN has an interesting aboriginal paper called "Peter Pitchlynn;" and Mr. WHITTIER, Mr. SIDNEY ANDREWS, Mr. T. M. BREWER, Mrs. CELIA THAXTER and MARIAN DOUGLAS make up most of the rest of a number which is not as brilliant as the Atlantic sometimes manages to be, but is, notwithstanding, of sterling average quality.

The new Harper's comes to us later this month than its brethren. Among the contents, which are fresh and various, are "The War in Paraguay," by Gen. MCMAHON; a descriptive paper on VON BISMARCK, which is cleverly put together and smartly written; a continuation of the interminable "Frederick the Great;" an instructive paper on silk worms and velvet looms; an article called "Around the World on Skates," apparently written by the skaters; more of "A Brave Lady;" and of Mr. GUY LIVINGSTONE's "Asteron;" some Border Reminiscences, by Gen. MARCY; contributions on the "Great Gold Conspiracy" and "The Indian;" several bits of average poetry, and the usual genial miscellanies at the end. The number is a sprightly one and will be much relished by the innumerable admirers of the magazine.

The Late Anson Burlingame and the Travellers' Club.

At a regular meeting of the directors of the Travelers' Club, held at their club-house on Tuesday evening last, Hon. C. P. POMEROY announced the death of His Excellency, ANSON BURLINGAME, an honorary member of the Club, and passed the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this club has heard, with profound sorrow, of the death of His Excellency, ANSON BURLINGAME, an honorary member of the Club, and at the time of his decease acting as Ambassador from the Emperor of China to the Western nations.

Resolved, That the Secretary be instructed to enter this resolution in the minutes of our proceedings, as a testimony of respect and admiration for the deceased, as a tribute, as a statement and as a practical illustration.

A New Hebrew Charity.

The ladies of the "B'nai Jeshurun Benevolent Society" have established an Industrial Home for poor Jewesses, and expect to begin giving out work on Monday next in the basement of the Thirty-fourth-street Synagogue. As this is one of the first institutions of the kind in the Jewish Church, some details as to its plans may not be without interest. The Jewish Messenger says, with regard to the management, that "all poor Jewesses known to the directresses as deserving, their wives and such others who may be properly recommended, will be accepted as learners and will be at once provided with sewing various articles of clothing; if they are ignorant of the science of sewing, they will be duly initiated into its mysteries. This enraged BURNICK and he stepped up to NUCKLES as his him, but NUCKLES struck him a terrific blow between the eyes, sending him screaming on the floor.

The University of California is to consist of five colleges, to be known as the California Hall, the College of Letters, the College of Agriculture, the College of Mechanic Arts, and the College of Mines. SPRINGS REFORMS.

Annual Report of the New-York Reform Prison Association—The Reformation of Criminals.

The twenty-fifth annual statement to the Legislature of the Executive Committee of the Prison Association of New-York, sets forth that the Prison Association has studied the question of the reformation of criminals, has done what of its scanty means, its resources, its ability to be employed in this cause, its [illegible] following assertions: 1. That there is needed some modification, and indeed in certain cases a reversal of the time-honored maxim of the law, that "every man is to be deemed innocent 'till he is proved guilty." 2. That more stringent legislation is needed in reference to the procurers of stolen goods, and other capitalists, whose money is used in a way to shelter, sustain and aid the criminal classes. 3. That the system of lodging and summary punishment, of "Tombs" and "Lodging and Summary Punishment," should be [illegible] strikes on more scientific principles, and brought under police regulations and supervision as once more efficient and more effective.

In the Detection and Discharged Convicts Department, Committee, Mr. ABRAHAM BEAL, under the direction of the appropriate committees, has been diligently at work, as the following summary of the labors thereby will demonstrate: 4,650 persons poor, friendless, and needing counsel of other aid, were helped by him in the detention prisons of New-York and Brooklyn, and received advice or relief administered, as their cases seemed severally to require; 800 complaints were examined by him, and such cases selected for separate attention as were found to have some mitigating circumstances connected with them; 320 complaints were withdrawn at his instance, on arrival in the case of the complainant of more or exalted feeling, and especially where families would be involved in want and distress through their prosecution; 178 persons were discharged from custody on his recommendation, and this was in no case given except after careful inquiry, the interest of the conviction was entertained that the cause of justice as well as mercy would be thereby promoted; 1,400 liberated prisoners were aided with board, money, railroad tickets, &c., &c.; 125 discharged convicts were supplied with clothing adapted to their necessities; 16 discharged prisoners were provided with situations in which they could earn and get honest bread.

Many families of prisoners, left in a destitute and suffering condition by the incarceration of those on whom they depended for support, have also had such relief afforded them as their circumstances demanded and our means would warrant.

The Nautical Reform School has become an accomplished fact. A school-ship, purchased, fitted up and equipped by the Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction, now rides the waves of New-York Harbor. It was opened in February, and about 60 children were received. The Executive Committee urged upon the Legislature the establishment of a special prison for young transgressors, in which they might be subjected to a more reformatory treatment than has heretofore been, or is now, practiced in our public prisons. This appeal was responded to by the passage of an Act authorizing and requiring the Governor to appoint a commission, to select a site and frame a plan of organization for the proposed prison. It is understood that the Commissioners have discharged the duty thus laid upon them, and will submit their report to the Legislature at an early day. Other States are already moving in this same direction, incited thereto by the revelations and recommendations of our report of last year. It is therefore much to be desired that our new reformatory prison for young criminals be based upon right principles, so, whether good or bad, it will be sure to become a model for other institutions founded elsewhere for the same class of offenders.

ANOTHER MONSTER HOTEL

The Manse, Cheapy New-Structure on the Broadway and Twenty-fifth-street—Rapidly Approaching Completion.

The mania for building monster hotels seems to be on the increase in this City. No sooner is one completed than another is commenced. The "Central," on Broadway, under the supervision of Mr. POWERS, the lessee, will soon receive its finishing touches, but before its doors are thrown open for the reception of guests, another monster establishment, rivaling it in magnitude and surpassing it in magnificence, will be far under way toward completion. So quietly has the work on the new structure been carried on that but few are aware, up to the present time, that it is designed for a hotel.

The new hotel is being built on the site of what was formerly known as the "Old Anderson Farm," on the northeast corner of Broadway and Twenty-fifth-street, one block above the Coleman House, and two below the Grand Hotel. It will have a frontage of 200 feet on Broadway, extending back from there a distance of 200 feet on Twenty-fifth-street. The ground on which it is being built was leased from the heirs of the Anderson estate for seventy-five years by the Messrs. GILSEY, proprietors of the Coleman House. Work was commenced during July last, and up to the present time the walls have been completed up to the eighth story, and the iron-facings and columns are being rapidly placed in position.

The entire structure will be composed of wood and iron, the latter of which has been cast at the celebrated Architectural Iron-works of D. D. PERRIN & CO. In fact Fourteenth-street, the place of a foundry, alone involving an expenditure of $100,000. The architecture is of the [illegible] order, which renders the building very conspicuous from the surrounding buildings and peculiar ornamental iron-work. The whole will be surrounded by a French mansard roof of galvanized iron, a style hitherto unknown in this City.

It will contain 275 rooms and parlors en suite, exclusive of saloons, offices, drawing or billiard rooms, the main dining-room will be on the second floor and will accommodate 300 guests.

On the first or ground floor, fronting both Broadway and Twenty-fifth-street, will be the office. It will resemble that of the Grand Hotel in its arrangements, with the exception that it will not equal it in size. In addition to the usual office fixtures a miniature fire department will be established, so that it will be an utter impossibility for the structure to suffer from an incipient conflagration. The main rooms, a new feature, will be carpeted and furnished in the most elegant and costly manner, and will be kept in a state of perfect cleanliness. The rooms will be furnished with the improved fire escapes, which will be a feature of this magnificent hotel. Like those of the Metropolitan, Fifth-avenue and Lenox Houses, the elevator of the new hotel will extend from the cellar to the top floor, and will be carpeted and furnished in the most elegant and costly manner

Cadwell, of the firm of Lathrop, Instanton & Cadwell, William H. Mallory, of the firm of Mallory, Butterfield & Co., Henry Parsons, E. A. Southwick, of No. 309 Broadway, Justin L. Kiss and Simon Sonne. Peter R. Hurray deposed to having bought cents Mr. Howard's stamps, commencing in February, 1869, and to having supplied, through a detectives agent, at the rate of 1,000 of the defendant on match boxes; he said that the stamp duty was imposed, Howard had paid. He also said Howard had not used counterfeit stamps except those which he had purchased; he, the witness, had access to Howard's warehouse and factory and had invariably found him to be correct and honorable in his transactions; at the time Burton pretended to have supplied Mr. Howard with counterfeit stamps he, witness was in sole control of the business of Mr. Howard, and no stamps were used save those supplied by the Government; he said Mr. Howard had been closed since the 1st of April, and had no occasion to use any stamps; he, witness, denied having presented Mr. Howard to Burton, the Government witness, and characterized his statement to the contrary as untrue; when Mr. Howard relinquished his business he had on hand between $2,000 and $3,000 worth of stamps, all of which he procured from the Government; mention was made of a letter which the defendant received from a person in England, in which the writer requested him to send him one of his sheets of stamps. The letter was transmitted to Secretary Hamilton, Washington, together with a bad sovereign which it contained, after which the latter wrote back that he saw no impropriety in complying with the writer's request. Mr. Howard declined, however, fearing that the intention of the writer was not honest. Mr. Howard's lease of premises, dated March 1, between the defendant and Burton, in which the latter agreed to pay $250 a year as rent for a house on Staten Island, belonging to the former. The examination will be continued on Monday next.

The Norwalk Bank Burglary—An Examination Commenced.

Justice Scott, at the Tombs, yesterday, commenced an examination in the case of Wm. Orell, the broker, who is accused of complicity in the stealing of $100,000 worth of bonds from the National Bank of Norwalk, Conn. Counsel for the defense, Mr. Anthon, insisted that the complaint was erroneous, as his client was accused of committing the burglary, when it could easily be proved that he was in New-York on the night of the burglary. Mr. Bliss, Assistant District-Attorney, combatted this view, and insisted that the complaint was right, as he held the person having possession to be the thief until he showed otherwise.

The complainant was then cross-examined, the Magistrate deciding to go on with the case on the affidavits already existing. Mr. Hill, the President of the Bank of Norwalk, testified as to his personal knowledge of the burglary and the bonds alleged to have been stolen. His evidence proved unimportant and the case went over until today, the prisoner not being permitted to give bail.

DECISIONS.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS—MARCH 24.

Not Out on Contract.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Before Judge Blatchford.

Edward S. Barker vs. The Schooner Elizabeth A. Allen.—In this case the clerk had refused to tax witness fees for one of the claimants who had attended as a witness on the trial, and the claimant appealed from the taxation.

Held by the Court—That under the third section of the act of Feb. 26, 1853, (10 U. S. Stats., 168,) it is only the amount paid to witnesses which is taxable as a disbursement and that the claimants could have subpoenaed and paid the fees of their own attendance on the trial. (Sweet vs. Mitchell, 20 How. Pr. Rep., 2, 10.) Taxation sustained.

Jos. Hoadley, Benj. Gee & Benedict; for Libellants. Beebe, Donohue and Cooke, for Claimants.

Before Judge Shipman.

William C. Beaver vs. The Sinking Fund.—This was a libel to recover for work and materials furnished to the bark. The only question was as to the amount the claimants of the vessel insisted that the work was done under a contract for a lump sum, and the libelant claiming $1,450 of on a quantum meruit. The case was tried in November, 1869, but the stenographer's minutes of testimony were lost or mislaid by the period that were set down till September, 1869, when they were submitted to the Court for decision.

Held by the Court—That on the evidence the claimants had the work which was done was to be done for a lump sum, and that the libelant was entitled to recover.

Decree for libelant for $1,450 of with interest from the date of the completion of the work, viz. Jan. 1, 1867, and such costs as would have been taxable had judgment been entered on that day.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—EASTERN DISTRICT.

Before Judge Benedict.

Albert B. Mead and Benjamin F. Tyler vs. The British Brig N. A. Herrera.—On petition of the claimants, as previously reported, the vessel was ordered to be sold. The Marshal yesterday paid into Court, as proceeds of such sale $7,000 and from this amount the Marshal's fees and costs were to be paid.

MARINE COURT—TRIAL TERM—PART I.—MARCH 24.

Before Judge Curtis and a Jury.

A WARNING TO LANDLADIES WHO KEEP VICIOUS DOGS.

Wallstein Funke, by her Guardian, Louis Funke vs. Anton Muzzio.—This action was brought to recover $500 for injuries received by a little girl, aged about two years. The case over what her parents in a tenement-house, the defendant, owned a dog, owned by the defendant. A large number of other families with children resided in the same house. On playing with other children in the yard belonging to the tenement, the dog bit the plaintiff, inflicting a severe contusion, and among other injuries which the child received, a fracture of the skull, from which she died some few days after. The evidence was to the effect that the dog was of a vicious character.

On the part of the plaintiff it was shown that the dog was known to be vicious, and that the defendant was aware of the fact.

The defendant denied all knowledge as to the propensities of the dog, and claimed that because it was the animal could not be recovered, it appeared from the plaintiff's testimony that it was not a trespasser on the part of the guardians of the child in permitting it to be in the yard unprotected. A motion was made for a nonsuit, which was denied, and the case which the Court denied and sent the case to the jury. After a brief consultation the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff for $400. To this amount the Court added an allowance by way of costs.

For plaintiff, Mr. Fabri Cable; for the defendant, Messrs. Flanagan and Green.

COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TERM—PART II.—MARCH 24.

Before Judge Loew and a Jury.

Notice.

We cannot notice anonymous communications. In all cases we require the writer's name and address, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

We cannot return rejected communications, nor preserve manuscripts, unless specially requested so to do.

To Advertisers.

Advertisers in the TIMES are requested to bring in their notices as early as noon in the day as possible. If received after 8½ o'clock, it will be impossible to classify them under their proper heads.

☞ For the accommodation of up-town residents, advertisements for insertion in the TIMES will be received at No. 54 West 23d-st., junction of Broadway and 6th-av., at same rates as are charged at office of publication.

Our Circulation.

The subscription list and the daily sales of the TIMES are now greater than at any period within the last twelve months, and are rapidly increasing. The fact is mentioned for the information of friends and in reply to the misstatements of enemies.

Sunday's Edition of the Times.

The TIMES of Sunday next will contain two most interesting original stories, together with a very varied selection from the latest foreign journals. There will be several articles of great interest to all classes of readers, an account of a lady's ride from Boston to New-York in 1704, and some attractive quotations from new magazines published in this country. A number of original articles, and a full summary of local news, will also be contained in the paper.

The popularity of the Sunday TIMES is constantly increasing, and last Sunday alone there was to the circulation. It is more suitable for advertisers desirous of reaching the family circle than any other journal published in the City.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

Another strike among the workmen at Le Creusot, France, is reported, which is supposed to have a political tendency....The cases of persons accused of conspiracy in the recent plot against the life of NAPOLEON, are to be brought before the Court now in session at Tours....A London newspaper correspondent, writing from Tours in regard to the Bonaparte trial, comments "on the evident purpose of all the witnesses to suppress or distort facts"....The British turreted ship Captain made her second trial trip on Wednesday with the most gratifying results....The American Bishops at Rome still refuse to assent to the Infallibility dogma....A new Cabinet has been formed in Wurtemburg....A railway is to be built from Athens, Greece, over the Isthmus and across the Gulf of Corinth to a point on the western coast.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate yesterday no business was transacted, as that body went into Executive Session immediately after the reading of the journal. The debate was upon the San Domingo treaty. Mr. SUMNER made a long speech, and the subject will be resumed today.

In the House the principal business of the morning was the final report of the Military Committee on the sale of cadetships, the substance of which was that there were no more cases to be acted upon. The Committee reported a bill requiring cadets to reside two years in the district, which term was reduced to one year. They recommended the removal of Gen. SCHENCK from the Patent-office, the exclusion of lobbyists from the floor and rooms of the House, and a court-martial upon the conduct of Commander UPSHUR. The Tariff bill occupied the attention of the House during the remainder of the session and in the evening.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate yesterday the bill relating to the Supreme Court, under the new article on the Judiciary in the Constitution, was reported. A bill to prevent fraudulent voting was offered by Mr. GERRY, but objection was made by Mr. TWEED. The bill relating to the election of Inspectors of Election in Brooklyn was recommitted to the Committee on the Judiciary. A resolution to declare the Metropolitan Police Commissionership held by Mr. SMITH vacant, and to provide for the election of a successor on the 5th of April, was introduced and laid over. The bill to incorporate the Staten Island Bridge Company was passed. The Senate held an evening session.

In the Assembly, the bill to incorporate the Association of the Bar of New-York was reported. Among the measures passed were the bill authorizing Brooklyn to raise money to support the dependencies, and that extending the time for collecting the taxes in West Farms. The House adjourned till 1½ P.M. In the evening an effort was made to make the Brooklyn Police bill a special order for today, but it failed by a vote of 46 to 45.

GENERAL.

The Cuban Charitable Aid Society has appointed Ex-Gov. WARD, of New-Jersey, and Ex-Gov. FLETCHER, of Missouri, Vice-Presidents of the Society.

The Western Union Telegraph Company has established a free school for instructing young men in telegraph operation, in this City.

Mr. DALE publishes a statement that the City of Brussels touched at Halifax under the apprehension of failing short of coal, and took on board 400 tons there. A Halifax dispatch says but one small propeller was loaded there, and he was a passenger for Boston.

The Mormon Conference has been postponed until the 6th of May next.

The Senate yesterday confirmed the Governor's appointments for Captain of the Port, Harbor Masters and Port Wardens of New-York. The Captain is JAMES E. JONES.

The Memphis and Arkansas River Packet Company's steam-boat Golden was snagged and sunk in the Arkansas River on the 23d inst. No lives were lost.

Three robbers broke into the house of WASHINGTON VANDERHEYDEN, near Troy, and killed the owner. His son fired a gun to alarm the neighbors, and the murderers fled.

The Maine Legislature adjourned sine die yesterday, having passed, in seventy-eight days, 236 bills and 105 resolutions.

The Senate Post-office Committee has agreed to report a bill to subsidize the Pacific Mail Steam-ship Company for carrying mails between San Francisco and China, semi-monthly, to the amount of $1,000,000 per annum.

EUGENIE SCHUYLER has been confirmed as Secretary of Legation at St. Petersburg.

In an interview with several Republican members of the Virginia Legislature, yesterday, the President said Gen. CAREY had merely interfered in Richmond to prevent bloodshed and riot, as was his duty.

The Massachusetts branch of the Cuban League of the United States was organized in Boston on Wednesday evening.

The steamer Dolphin, from Philadelphia for Richmond, Va., was burned at Patuxent, Md., on Tuesday morning. The crew had a narrow escape.

A series of resolutions were offered in the Nova Scotia Legislature on Wednesday night, setting forth the effects of the abrogation of reciprocity upon that Province, and deprecating retaliatory legislation on the part of the Dominion Parliament.

The faction fight of the Democracy creates considerable excitement. Senator TWEED declares that he has not resigned; Sheriff O'BRIEN agrees with him in this respect, but states that he has been removed. No more removals have taken place, and probably nothing more will be done until after the meeting of the Democratic General Committee on Monday evening.

Four spans of the Central Pacific Railway bridge over the American River at Sacramento, Cal., were burned on Wednesday night.

The Alumni of Princeton College had their annual meeting and dinner at Delmonico's last evening, W. C. ALEXANDER, Esq., presiding. Addresses were made by Dr. MCCOSH, Dr. ADAMS, Rev. T. L. CUYLER and others.

The expediency of imposing an income tax is occupying the attention of the Judiciary Committee of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

The Meaning of the Conflict.

The public is just now being treated to so many different accounts of the late coup d'état at Albany that it will probably have some difficulty in deciding which to believe. The friends of Mr. TWEED and his confederates positively assert that the "Young Democracy," as the new coalition agrees to call itself, received its death-blow on Tuesday. Yet powerful coalitions are seldom annihilated in a single day. If analogies in the history of party could assist us to form a conclusion in regard to this particular event, we should be inclined to believe that a struggle begun with so much determination will not be ended by a single reverse. The assailants probably knew as well as any one that they were liable to meet with discomfiture at more than one point of the road. They were opposed by men who could command unlimited wealth, and who were certain to be entirely unscrupulous in the use of it. Very likely the disasters of Tuesday a little exceeded their anticipations. But party schisms are not closed by incidents like those which took place on that day at Albany. The "Young Democracy" must have been a rope of sand if it has been completely scattered with one blow.

It is of no little importance to the public to observe at what cost this "great victory" has been accomplished. The estimates vary somewhat in amount, but in quarters which profess to have good information, it is said that not much less than $200,000 changed hands at Albany on Monday and Tuesday. As this money comes out of the pockets of the tax-payers, we do not see that honest citizens have much reason to participate in the rejoicings of TWEED and company. A much smaller sum than that named would be an extravagant price to pay for the preservation of a clique which has always regarded the public simply as a thing to be plundered. Rumor states that one of the chiefs of this clique has amassed not less than six millions of dollars, and probably a good deal more, since he first entered office. If his friends have flourished in anything like the same proportion, it is certainly difficult to understand how a change of masters could have done us any serious injury. We have held ourselves free to discuss measures apart from men, and should have been quite willing to support any good legislation which the new coalition attempted to enforce. There was, undoubtedly, a band of upright and sincere men behind the assailants of the "Ring," but there was from the first too much reason to suppose that they would be undone by their allies. It remains to be seen, however, whether they are quite so powerless as the Tweed faction now boast.

If the "Ring" has gained a field-day in the Legislature, but at the same time permanently lost ground in Tammany, its ultimate position cannot well be so triumphant as we find it today. On this point, next Monday may probably give rise to new complications. There is to be a meeting of the Tammany General Committee, and even a lavish use of money may not prevail against the attacking party. In any case, it would seem almost impossible that out of all this evil some good should not result to the public. The session began with a determination on the part of TWEED and his associates to bring forward measures from which the public could not fail to have been great sufferers. It is now said that Mr. TWEED will attempt to revive the abominable charter known as Mr. FREAR'S. If he does, we unfortunate to predict that he will be defeated. The charter of the new coalition is not dead, and we shall be mistaken if it is not pressed forward, and if it does not meet with greater support than FREAR'S mischievous scheme could possibly have gained. We only hope that our Republican friends will be more and more cautious with whom they act in the midst of the present chaos. "Codlin's your friend—not Short," is a cry which ought not to deceive any man who has spent three days in the Capitol. There are probably few high-minded Democrats who would not readily concede that the scenes which have been witnessed this week will not tend to exalt the party in the estimation of the people at large.

Officers and the Army Bill.

The prevailing sentiment of the army against the House bill, one of the provisions of which is to reduce the number of officers, becomes more earnest and pronounced. In considering the bill as a whole, we have already said that there are features which are open to little objection. But the contemplated turning adrift of a large number of men who have been trained to military life as a profession, who have been taught to believe that their positions were safe, and whose services have earned for them the gratitude of the country, is not a course which will gain the popular approval. A letter, which will be found elsewhere, views the subject from a professional point. But it did not need the explanations of a veteran to show how great an injustice may be attempted in the name of economy.

The plain and undisputable facts in regard to these reductions are easily stated. The nation requires a permanent military force of some kind, and must have it. There is always work which it is called upon to do—steady, ceaseless and essential work. There must be some garrisons, and there is a vast extent of frontier for which a guard is necessary. Immense quantities of Government property needs protection; and, in short, the requirements of the case are apparent even to civilians. The wonder is that the small force maintained is able to be so effective as it is. The army establishment is on a peace footing, only because there is no foreign quarrel to need its being otherwise, but there are, even in times of peace, constant requirements for active, disciplined and available troops.

Is it necessary to remind Congress what the nation owes to the regular army? Are the sadness and the weariness of the war so soon forgotten? Was it so long ago that we read and told each other that the regulars had been nearly all swept away by battle and were replaced over and over again only to fill new graves? Not by the people certainly, if it is by the promoters of the Army bill. The nation does not seek to turn adrift its honored surviving veterans. But there is a grave danger which will not be overlooked. It is that the future esprit of the army, its continued high character, are directly attacked by a proposition which practically says that no officer can feel confidence in his professional future. Up to the present time this could not be said. Our youth were dedicated to arms just as they were to other particular walks of life, with the full assurance that dependence might be placed in such. To inform a boy at West Point that his tenure of professional existence was liable to be ended by a hasty vote of Congress, would be to tell him that he never ought to have gone there. Of all the duties which fall to the lot of men, that of a soldier in command, even of the smallest body of troops, requires the soundest training. He needs courage, skill, judgment, and the ability to bear the responsibilities of emergencies. These are not obtained by accident nor in a day. Can the country afford, by a measure which is not only ungrateful, but which will inevitably diminish the value of the military profession, to lower the standard of our officers' personnel in the future? The question should not need asking, but in view of the Army bill reductions it must be asked. We cannot doubt what the answer will be. The United States is proud of its veterans, and will not let them go. Their record is imperishable, and the national comment upon it will never be ingratitude and injustice.

The Brooklyn Election Frauds.

The second stage of the Brooklyn election cases will be entered on next Monday. We have no wish to vex the soul of Mr. JENKS by prejudging those which are to come by a reference to those which have been disposed of. We entirely agree with the learned counsel in thinking that the mental eyesight of the jury ought to be left unobscured by the dust of newspaper criticism, and we accept it as matter for congratulation that the gentlemen who occupied the box were equally incapable of being misled by the scintillations of forensic brilliancy, as by the many-tongued clamor of public opinion. The result of the trials already held is briefly this: Out of six defendants indicted, one has been acquitted, three found guilty, and two have pleaded guilty. This is quite enough to justify the course pursued in these cases with so much tenacity and determination by District-Attorney MOORE. No one who has watched the tedious and vexatious delays against which he has had to contend, or has followed the slow and difficult elaboration of the testimony from witnesses frequently indisposed to tell all they knew, can fail to admire the dogged perseverance which has at length brought a portion of these frauds home to their authors.

The details of the case of MAHONEY, and that of MAYO and HANNON, raise some grave questions with reference to the appointment of inspectors and canvassers of elections. In both these cases where fraud has been established the men were presumedly partisan and avowedly ignorant. The Court went so far as to charge that the heat and hurry and excited feeling of an election might be held to palliate a certain amount of irregularity on the part of men sworn to the discharge of a highly-responsible public office. In defending MAHONEY from the charge of knowingly having his name entered found it necessary to credit the client with an amount of simplicity almost deserving another name. In extolling the evidence for the prosecution, which went to show that the other two had been guilty of a false count of the ballots, the defense rested simply on the facts that the defendants themselves swore to the accuracy of those figures, and that it was impossible for any one but themselves to know whether their reckoning was accurate or not. These men may be subjected to a penalty more or less proportionate to their deserts, but where is the guarantee that the same force may not be repeated? Even should the present prosecution strike a salutary terror into the breasts of ward politicians, it is not difficult to imagine a case in which a temptation might be presented to such men sufficient to overcome their dread of five hundred dollars fine, and a year in the State Prison,—the extreme legal penalty with which they can be visited. It has been held as proved that the manipulations of MAYO and HANNON changed the result of the Assembly vote, and gave Mr. CULLEN a majority which would otherwise have gone to Mr. AMBERMAN. The contingencies are endless where the vote of a community might turn upon a single district, and so long as officers of election are drawn from the lowest class of politicians, no legal power can shield the ballot-box from contamination.

In other countries the polling-sheriffs, as they are called, are often drawn from the ranks of the legal profession. However neutral a man may be in the struggle which is being carried on in the city where he resides, he is seldom permitted to act as recorder or inspector of parliamentary elections within its bounds. At such periods, the great army of local lawyers are on the move, and a general exodus, and corresponding influx, of the profession take place. We are honorably distinguished by our freedom from the disgraceful election riots of Great Britain, but we might imitate with advantage a system which has secured unquestioned accuracy in the enrolment of votes. Anything would be better than organized frauds, and the Brooklyn revelations will have done good service if they awaken public attention to the necessity for so pressing and so vital a reform.

The Function of Laughter.

Laughter is perhaps the only pleasure that does not weary with repetition, whose edge does not wax dull for the old, and whose enjoyment is limited to no sex or condition. This is, not only because it has no painful reaction, but because it is always new; so that, could some fortunate Greek or Persian have made the sated Eastern potentate sung by BYRON laugh heartily, he might fairly have taken the reward which posterity has always reckoned to have been as illusory as if offered for ropes of sand. And, after all, to raise a laugh requires no supreme effort; rather the reverse, in truth, since a labored jest is worse than none. A certain spontaneity is essential to the appearance of ease, without which the sally gives little pleasure. THEODORE HOOK used, it is said, to con over and prepare his funny things before a dinner party, and we have heard the same alleged of professed wits of our own time. But they who do this, and do it well, are artists of the first water; that is to say, they have the art to conceal art. For ordinary mortals the true felicity of a bon-mot must lie in its being unpremeditated. Gen. BUTLER'S celebrated "Shoo Fly!" to his pertinacious tormentor in a late Congressional debate was of this fine order. It was a genuine inspiration. Nothing else would have fitted so neatly into its place. There was just enough of it,—neither too much nor too little. Of that brevity which is the soul of wit, it is one of the choicest instances. The logic of its application was eclipsed by its brilliant irony. And so the laugh went rattling round from Maine to Florida, and from the James to the Sacramento, and Gen. BUTLER'S quickness of retort and the popular negro refrain are embalmed together by the muse of history.

Cynics may say we must have wanted something to laugh at to laugh at that. That is just it. We do want something to laugh at, very much indeed. The demand is as clearly defined, and as eager, as can well be conceived. Hence, even the most unconsidered trifles in the way of fun are eagerly snapped up. Not that we wish to be understood as stigmatizing "Shoo Fly" as an unconsidered trifle. In point of fact there is an element about it which enters into the composition of the grandest works of art. This is the element of mystery. No one, not even Gen. BUTLER, can tell what it means. Like the line of rising cliff that shuts out the sea, whose effect is so finely pointed out by RUSKIN, its sharp simplicity hides something unknown and unfathomable beyond. As regards the demand for fun, the explanation lies in a nutshell. Most of us are overworked, and excess of work involves the need of increased play to balance it. An oyster or a browning ox can get along without much excoriation of the risible faculties. Not so the man whose brain and nervous forces are continually on the strain. In his case the equilibrium is best restored by the flash of wit and the war of laughter, and the analogy this suggests is said by physiologists to be curiously complete. Nature leads the overworked man to seek an atmosphere of mirth as truly as she sends the deer to the salt-lick; and the personal attachment that most people contract for whoever makes them laugh is circumstantial evidence of this wholesome influence. Such comedians, for example, as BURTON and BUCKSTONE are loved by thousands who never know them in private. The popular feeling for DICKENS is another example in point. Artemus Ward, poor fellow, was making unknown friends in hosts at the time of his early death. But these things require no demonstration. What may reasonably be said is that it is right to live in such way as every [illegible] provokes a common gratitude.

The demand for fun, is great, and the supply is not equal to the demand. Why, of one sure to dry humor, [illegible] come in America. Our people have been too busy so far to get out the fun that is really in them. All acknowledge how good and needful a thing it is, but few even of those who might be able to do so come forward to supply it. The hard pressure of life, the immense amount of serious cares, force us into searching grooves from which it is hard to escape. Hence much of our society has had an air of portentous solemnity which, to a humorous person, is in itself ridiculous. We need to inoculate cheerfulness seriously as a fine art, as DE QUINCEY jocularly does murder. Wealth, ingenuity, speculative power and knowledge abound among us, but in our social salad there has never yet been enough of the oil of joy. Hence, perhaps, that lack of mellowness and wholesomeness in our average lives, which EMERSON and other of the most genial of native satirists have pointed out. Like young ANTONOMUS, with all our strength and prosperity and brilliant future, we have had a secret malady. Let us hope that in laughter, in a fuller and freer insight and appreciation of the whimsical side of life, we may find an enjoyment that it will be neither dangerous nor immoral to cultivate.

Cuba or San Domingo?

It is strange how any man who advocates the recognition of Cuban independence or belligerency, or looks forward to the annexation of that island, can oppose the acquisition of San Domingo. No one can fail to see that the latter is only a step toward the former; and that meanwhile it secures at a cheaper rate many if not all of the advantages promised by the other. Let us consider: Cuba might cost us a war, in which, though we should undoubtedly acquire that island, our commerce would inevitably be attacked by privateers, as it was during the rebellion, and inevitably with the same results. The expense of the war could not be less than hundreds of millions, while San Domingo is offered to us without a war and for a million and a half of money. Cuba has a population of one million five hundred thousand, of whom about half are white, and one-fifth of them of Spanish birth, the latter nearly all males, and bitterly hostile to the creoles, as well as to annexation; of the blacks, two-thirds are slaves. Among these various populations a civil war now rages almost unparalleled in barbarity on both sides. In San Domingo the population does not exceed a hundred thousand, more than two-thirds of whom are either black or colored. In the one case we should have to deal with the mixed races, and might find especial difficulty with those of Latin origin, as well as with those who would then be recently emancipated slaves; in the other case, we find a single race of colored men accustomed to freedom, and anxious to be received by us. The various and numerous populations of Cuba would constitute a new and difficult problem for our statesmen to solve, and doubtless complicate our politics; the few thousand voters whom San Domingo would bring into the Union would be lost in the overwhelming majority of natives of the United States who would rush to the island when once a firmly-established Government and free trade invited the influx of immigration.

Then, too, Cuba offers us no such harbor as Samana. That of Havana, although fine, is not comparable in any respect to the famous port in San Domingo. The one is not more than three or four miles across in any direction; the other is thirty miles deep and ten miles wide; while in location Samana is infinitely preferable for the purposes of the United States. Vessels bound for Central America, the Caribbean Sea, Venezuela, Colombia or the Isthmus, would be obliged to deviate nearly a thousand miles from their course, to coal or repair at Havana, while Samana is directly on their road.

The question is, whether to secure all these great advantages proffered by San Domingo, at a nominal expense, and with the certainty of no serious disadvantages afterward to set them off—or to incur the risk of a war and all its attendant evils and expenses, and subsequently a train of political complications, in order to obtain possession of a territory which has not been offered us, and a large portion of whose inhabitants are known to be intensely opposed to annexation. Cuba may, and doubtless will, eventually come to us, but she is not now ripe for this, nor are we ready to receive her. San Domingo is knocking at our door, and every distant or possible advantage promised by the possession of the one is almost certain to accrue immediately from the acquisition of the other.

The Hydra of the Streets.

Among the swindles by which the citizens of New-York have been fleeced, none has been more gross and shameless than those relating to its pavements, particularly that of Fifth-avenue. That magnificent thoroughfare possessed a firm, level, well-constructed roadway, with which every one was satisfied, and which was in sound and perfect condition. Now, in spite of indignant remonstrance, its surface was plastered over with a vile compound, which was worn into holes in a month, forming quagmires of indescribable filthiness in wet weather, in matter of civic history. The dust which blew from it every dry day was destructive to furniture, to upholstery, to carpets and dress, and even to health. The lungs of many unfortunates who were compelled to breathe it were seriously injured. It was only when the residents within its foul influence took active measures against it, and the Board of Health began to use its powers, that the Fiske abomination was scraped off and carried away.

But the troubles of Fifth-avenue are not over yet. The Fiske plaster is gone, and the handsome level pavement remains. But that is not to be for long. A new device of knavery has been invented. The present pavement is to be torn up, from Washington-square to Fifty-ninth-street, and the Stafford pavement substituted, at a cost, we venture to predict, of at least a million of dollars. Our anything but short-sighted City authorities! To satisfy the insatiate greed of corrupt politicians, the City is to be unnecessarily taxed for what it does not require, and against which the residents of the avenue protest. Protestations seem of no avail. The Mayor, it is true, vetoed the resolutions of the Common Council by which the swindle was decreed, but that body has passed them over his veto, and, as if to mark its contempt for the public, has raised the contract price a dollar the square yard. There are no words sufficiently strong by which this act can be reprobated. The only course left the citizens is an appeal to such legal privileges as are still left to this unfortunate City.

There is, however, another chapter of this strange story. The Fiske plaster is now reappearing in a new place. Its filthy nuisance, débris, shoveled and scraped from the surface of Fifth-avenue, is being carted into the City Hall Park, and there spread. This would seem incredible, but it is true. And what is to be done? Very soon the Park will be coated with a compound as unfit for a roadway as it is disgusting. The traffic will beat it into a slimy, sticky, odious pulp in wet weather, and every breath of wind will scatter it when dry into every store and office and workshop around, destroying the health and comfort of their occupants, and causing the passers-by to flee as from a pestilence. But the consummation of this evil deed must not be permitted; it is a shame that it should have been begun. The crowds who are attacked by it protest already, and once more the protection of the Board of Health must be invoked in the name of our outraged citizens.

If the Secretary of the Treasury were half as zealous in his efforts to relieve the people by reducing taxation as he is in behalf of a Funding bill which keeps up taxation, makes war upon the banks, and promotes the withdrawal of greenbacks,—the country would appreciate his exertions more highly. Energy in a Secretary regard—preliminary to the furtherance of measures demanded by the country is good also. But when these qualities are displayed in a work which confers no immediate benefit, and in opposition to the universal cry of the community for relief, they cease to command admiration or respect. A Funding bill of the kind urged by Mr. BOUTWELL can be dispensed with very well,—at least for the time. But the reduction of taxation is a great want, which neither the Administration nor the Republican Party can afford to disregard. Is Mr. BOUTWELL wedded indissolubly to "my policy!"

The Committee on Cadetships has not effected so much good as we had a right to expect from it. Mr. DEWEESE and Mr. WHITTEMORE will think that they have been made the scapegoats for others more guilty than themselves. The Committee began with a great flourish of trumpets, but their music has subsided to the compass of a penny whistle. It will always be suspected that they did not like the look of the discoveries they made, and were anxious to let the whole subject drop—just as if they had been a Committee inquiring into the frauds on the Methodist Book Concern. We should have thought that a body of which Mr. LOGAN is Chairman, would have been more aggressive, but the lion has roared like any nightingale, and members of Congress may go on selling cadetships as before—if they can only prevent anybody seeing them take the money.

Another Council of ladies is being held in Boston, and their deliberations have the advantage of being presided over by Col. HIGGINSON—if a man's advice can ever be deemed an advantage to the other sex. There is this to be said in Col. HIGGINSON'S favor, that he is a greater devotee of unlimited suffrage and all the other points in the programme of the "woman's party" than Miss ANTHONY herself. He is therefore admitted to the Boston Council, notwithstanding certain disqualifications. It is half a pity that he cannot prevail upon his friends to discuss one or two practical questions. At present they are busily occupied with the doctrine of "limitations" in reference to the human mind—a light and agreeable subject, doubtless, but one that has no immediate bearing on the current affairs of life. We commend to Col. HIGGINSON'S attention the doctrine of the Double Procession as being a suitable theme for discussion at an early meeting of his Council.

Mr. ALLISON, a member of the Committee on Ways and Means, made some very timely remarks in Congress yesterday. He expressed himself in favor of a reduction of taxation, and proceeded to point out one particular injustice of the present tariff. Those engaged in the production of iron in its ruder forms were amply protected—while the vast number of artisans working in iron received no protection whatever. Again, the tariff had increased the cost of iron to ship-builders—a fact only too well known already, but well worth repeating in Congress again and again. The discussion throughout deserves the attention of our readers, and may tempt us to recur to it on a future occasion.

The World gives its readers to understand that we have supported Ex-Collector BAILEY in all his proceedings. On the contrary, we have attacked, in no gentle terms, the suspicious zeal which he displayed in his recent prosecutions of whisky dealers. His wholly unjustifiable proceedings against firms of respectability seemed to us to clearly foreshadow his ruin. We did not accuse him of being a defaulter, because there was no reason then to suspect that he was one. A man may be over-officious without being dishonest. It appears that Mr. BAILEY was both. If he could be caught, we should urge his prosecution quite as energetically as the World, for integrity among public officers is of more importance than any other consideration. We do not excuse Mr. BAILEY—but if there had been anything like a proper supervision of his accounts, the defalcations now reported never could have occurred. Laxity in public departments is a pretty sure encouragement to dishonesty.

Subsidizing lines of ocean traffic is not a policy on which this country should now embark. We have no money to spare for enterprises which may be more effectually and more properly aided by methods that do not involve additional taxation. The shipping interest needs succor, undoubtedly. Help it then, by cheapening the cost of building and running ships. Take off the duties now levied on articles entering into their construction, and let their supplies be drawn from Send. These are practical methods of rendering help, and entail no injustice upon other interests. Then cheapen the cost still more by reducing the burdens of the people, which consists in the development of the industry—then of [illegible] not required.

Sir STAFFORD NORTHCOTE, it appears, has informed the House of Commons that the Hudson's Bay Company's territory "will soon be entirely given over to the Dominion of Canada." Now let him tell the Hudson Bay Company that territory, or any portion of it, is likely to "be given over" to the United States. Does he expect that the Dominion, as it at present stands, will last forever—or even survive the present generation?

The Frothingham sect in this City will be very glad, and the general public very sorry, to hear that an effort is to be made to render the Divorce laws of Massachusetts more lax than they now are. A bill has been introduced into the Legislature making separation for five years, even if with the consent of both husband and wife, a cause of divorce. Desertion of three years will answer the same purpose. A Massachusetts paper calls this a "concession to human frailty." It is a concession which may not satisfy the ideas of the sect above referred to, but then, Massachusetts has been rather strict hitherto, and people cannot expect it to go as far as Indiana at one leap. As Indiana divorces have received the sanction of high authority, it is quite clear that any case which was brought to this City under the proposed new law in Massachusetts would be received with shouts of approval.

From the fact that many officers of the Government are underpaid, the Tribune draws the conclusion that all of them ought to be underpaid. It says that "Gen. SHERMAN is paid $13,700 per year; Chief Justice CHASE $6,500." Well, this is a very clear argument in favor of increasing the Chief Justice's salary. Gen. SHERMAN thinks that retrenchment should begin in the civil service rather than in the army. But does that mean that he wishes to see salaries already too low cut down still lower? Nothing of the kind—we all know that there are many ways of reducing the expenditure for the civil branch of the Government without lopping off any of the Chief Justice's or Vice-President's narrow stipend. The Tribune twists Gen. SHERMAN'S words into a sense which they were never designed to bear, and would not have now unless they were read through a distorted medium.

The meeting at Croton Falls of the milk-farmers along the various lines of railway, made a move in the right direction by protesting against the use of brewers' grains and distillers' wash in their dairies. If they can carry out their views and regulate their cows on the good, wholesome diet natural to them, they will give the animals a vast advantage over those of the human race who must have the alcoholic and malt-liquor beverages, and they will also benefit themselves. Grass produces much more and better butter than swill; and in the long run the farmers who are known for the richness and wholesome quality of their milk will have the preference that always follows a good article. People will learn what grass-fed milk is and insist on having it; while even the roguish City dealers themselves would patronize it, if it were only for the reason that its richness would enable it to "stand" a more than ordinary infusion of pump-water.

Perhaps some of our readers have never heard one of the beautiful poems which a member of Congress now and then delivers as a speech, to the amusement of all rational men, and the bewilderment of foolish ones. Mr. JOHNSON, one of the Representatives from California, yesterday, submitted one of these splendid productions of the human intellect to the House. It was a song in praise of wine. It completely eclipses the finest efforts of Dick Swiveller. "The juice of the grape," says Mr. JOHNSON, "makes men love one another." That may be his happy experience in California, but here in New-York we don't often see that particular manifestation. We are more familiar with seeing men put a knife into each other under the exhilarating influence which Mr. JOHNSON praises in such exquisite strains. JACK REYNOLDS is our New-York type of the drunk—JACK REYNOLDS, who, since he killed a man, has been providentially discovered to be rather weak in his intellect.

Recess of the Illinois Constitutional Convention—What it Has Done.

The Illinois Constitutional Convention adjourned on the 17th inst., to meet again April 12. It assembled Dec. 13, said, after a session of twelve days, took a recess until the 5th of January. It has been in session sixty-six working days. The following summary shows the articles passed upon in Committee of the Whole and reported to the Convention, and referred to the Committee on Revision and Adjustment, with the date of their passage:

Jan. 24. Article —On miners and mining, two sections.
Jan. 24. Preamble adopted.
Jan. 24. Article 1.—Relating to boundaries.
Feb. 5. Article —Relating to Illinois and Michigan Canal (Mr. BROWNING'S substitute,) two sections.
Feb. 24. In reference to State, County and municipal indebtedness, two sections.
Feb. 25. Article —Relating to military affairs, six sections.
Feb. 25. Article —Providing for a system of township organization, two sections.
Feb. 25. Article —Relating to roads and highways, one section.
Feb. 25. Article —Providing for a system of homestead exemption.
Feb. — Article — Executive Department, twenty-eight sections.
March 2. Article — Legislative Department, forty-four sections.
March 17. Article — Judiciary Department, forty-nine sections.

Reports (in some cases both majority and minority) from the Committees on Revenue, Right of Suffrage, Electoral and Representative Reform, Miscellaneous Corporations, Counties, Federal Relations, Bill of Rights, Amendments, &c., are yet pending and undisposed of, while the Committees on Bill of Rights and Schedule have not yet presented their reports.

Assistant-Surgeon Edward Frothingham, U. S. N.

Paymaster THOS. L. TULLOCK, Jr., who was lost in the Oneida, wrote as follows from Nagasaki, Japan, June 4, 1869, of Surgeon FROTHINGHAM, who also went down with that ill-fated ship:

"When the small-pox was prevalent on shipboard at Hiogo, the same place, very virulent and fatal. A Japanese was hired on shore, and our estimable Assistant-Surgeon occupied it, and all sick with the infectious disease were sent to him. As soon as a man complained, he was bundled off to the hospital, as the house was called. Dr. FROTHINGHAM, a graduate of a college, and medical university, an excellent young man, of good ability and skill, and most gratifying prospects, shut himself up with these sick men and tended them faithfully for about forty days at the imminent peril of his life. He was of course shunned by every one and virtually quarantined during the length of time the epidemic lasted. I have frequently witnessed in other surgeons the same courage and fidelity to duty, particularly when the yellow fever prevailed in our Gulf squadron during the rebellion."

Obituary.

Information received recently from Brazil gives intelligence of the death of MARCUS WILLIAMS, a well-known citizen of Newark, at Marabam, on the 18th of February. Since the year that Mr. WILLIAMS has been a traveler and explorer of no little celebrity, having performed some of the most dangerous journeys through the mountains of South America. A few years ago he took a contract for supplying the City of Maranham with gas, a work which compelled the importation of a large quantity of machinery, and which was carried out to the satisfaction of the officers of the city and to the profit of the contractor. Mr. WILLIAMS had a large number of friends in Newark, by whom his loss will be deplored.

EUROPEAN NEWS BY MAIL.

ARRIVAL OF THE CHINA AND LAFAYETTE.

The steam-ship China, from Liverpool March 12 and Queenstown March 13, and the Lafayette, from Havre March 10 and Brest March 12, reached this port yesterday. The news that at hand is later by three days than that already at hand by the Manhattan. Capt. ROUSSEAU of the Lafayette is entitled to thanks for late Continental papers.

The COMTE DE CHAMPAGNY had been inducted into the chair of the French Academy, vacated by the death of M. BERRYER.

Mr. BERKELEY, who represented Bristol in Parliament for thirty-three years, had died at his residence in London, aged seventy-six. Mr. BERKELEY's death created quite a stir in political circles. The supporters of Mr. HODGSON and Mr. ROBINSON met at once, and agreed to suspend all meetings until after the funeral.

The Princess FREDERICK of Holland was at Cannes in a very dangerous state of health. She is sixty-two years of age, sister of the King of Prussia; she has had by her marriage with the Prince two daughters, one Queen of Sweden, and the other the Princess WILLIAM DE WIED.

The Français announces that Minister BUFFET has taken a strong measure. He had ordered the Commissary of Police, at the Bourse, to seize all the circulars issued by the Turkish Railway Company, as well as all the books of the speculators who dealt in the bonds. This is in virtue of the law against lotteries.

The Parisian Press had lost one of its most respectable members—M. HENRI DE RIANCEY, editor of the Union. His opinions were Legitimist and clerical, but though his views were very extreme he was ever a fair, upright and courteous opponent. In his own party his consistency and talent made him an idol, and a unanimous feeling of regret was expressed at his untimely death. M. DE RIANCEY was only fifty-three.

"The question of the institution of judges of the Jewish religion," says the Volksvertretung of Berlin, "is definitively settled. The last number of the organ of the Minister of Justice publishes the appointment of two Jews, MM. LUCAS and SALOMON, as Judges at Breslau."

The Austrian Minister of War had ordered a prosecution against Col. SCHRODER, Chief of the Engineers in Dalmatia, for having published, in the Military Gazette, an article entitled "News from the Austrian Caucasus," in which the writer exposes the mistakes made by the War Office in that campaign.

L'Histoire states that on March 8, a column, composed of eight hundred conscripts of the Twentieth Arrondissement, in Paris, marched up to the office of La Marseillaise, bearing at their head a tricolored flag hung with crape. After an interval spent in singing the quasi national air "La Marseillaise," the conscripts marched off to the quarters prepared for them.

Another band, composed of about one hundred conscripts, traversed the Rue du Temple singing the "Chant du Départ."

The announcement that Mr. DISRAELI had an interview with Her Majesty at Buckingham Palace, on Wednesday, gave rise to a rumor that some special distinction was about to be conferred upon the great novelist. The Daily Telegraph says there is no foundation for the report. The explanation is the simple, it adds, was one of those acts of homage to genius which in this country take the place of the stars and ribands and other honors which continental sovereigns so freely confer upon men of letters and artists.

A Conservative banquet had been given in London on March 10. Mr. R. N. FOWLER, M. P., presided. A letter from Mr. DISRAELI, expressing regret at his inability to attend the reunion, was read at the outset of the proceedings. It was ended with the following words: "Parliament can invest the people with the franchise, but, after all, its practical enjoyment depends on their own vigilance and energy. The elector who is not registered is only theoretically free. With perseverance and determination—qualities which in these critical times ought not to be wanting—the constituencies of the City of London and the rest of the metropolis may place themselves in the proud position of the great towns of the North, and, like them, vindicate English interests and English feelings."

A large proportion of the 400 or 500 persons who were arrested in St. Petersburg in January for complicity in a socialist conspiracy had been released from custody, most of them being previously required to sign a paper binding themselves to leave the locality where the investigations of the commission are held. Nevertheless, 105, including some officers of the army, still remained in custody. In consequence of the continued machinations of the socialist party, the Minister of the Interior had ordered that the Imperial ukase of the 19th of February, 1863, which proclaimed the emancipation of the serfs, be distributed throughout each province of the Empire. 50,000 copies of the ukase had been printed for the purpose.

ENGLISH AFFAIRS.

The Irish Land Bill—Education—Retrenchment and Economy—The Medical Profession—American Topics—Latest Scandals.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Saturday, March 12, 1870.

The long debate preceding the second reading of the Irish Land bill will not much interest you. The whole matter has been so thoroughly discussed the past year in speeches, pamphlets and newspapers that not one fresh word can be said about it. The House is satisfied with the principle of the bill, and though a motion was made to throw it out—that is, that it be read a second time this day six months—it was only an orderly formality. The bill will be amended in certain points, in committee, and pass. After what was done last session to satisfy Ireland, the Government will not hesitate to do whatever justice and the largest expediency may require. The presence and speech of Mr. DISRAELI last night gave some animation to the close of the debate, but a division with 11 against 442 was ridiculous.

EDUCATION.

The Education bill is likely to prove a greater difficulty. American statesmen are interviewed, English ones are deputationed. Mr. GLADSTONE has this week received, I presume, the largest deputation ever admitted to an audience by a Prime Minister. Four hundred delegates of ninety-six branches of the Education League crowded into his dingy offices in Downing-street, and there he stood behind his table, with Earl DE GREY on one side looking bored, and Mr. FORSTER on the other, firm and patient, listening for one mortal hour to the speeches of the gentlemen selected to present the different points on which the League differs from the Government in regard to the education of the people.

And these gentlemen were not opponents of Mr. GLADSTONE, but his enthusiastic supporters. When he entered the room they made it tremble with their plaudits; when the speakers complimented him, as they did in the outspoken English fashion, they responded with hearty English cheers. It would have been difficult to pack more admiration, or to have made more noise in the First Lord's reception-room. You may judge of the importance of the delegation from the fact that it contained thirty members of Parliament, numbers of Non-Conformist ministers, a few Anglican clergymen, thirteen mayors, and many gentlemen bearing civic and academic honors, but almost none of the hereditary nobility. For them you must go to the other society—the National Education Union, which includes most of the Peers, temporal and spiritual.

The objections to the bill urged upon the Ministry were the year's delay before it can go into operation—a year of bitter contest and wasteful expenditure; the permissive element, which would enable each denomination that had a majority in any locality to rate the others for its support; the fee system, which would place a stigma upon those unable to pay. The League wants a free, compulsory, unsectarian education; and would rather defeat the present bill than have it pass with its objectionable features. On the other hand, the Church of England and the Catholics are satisfied with the bill as it is. It would have education where it is now, but with a much fuller support, in four-fifths of the districts, that is, in the hands of the squires and the clergy, while in the greater part of Ireland it would be under the charge of the priests, and to this, in both cases, the great body of dissenters and secularists have the most decided objections. They would not, I believe, very strongly object to Methodist or Baptist schools, where these were in a strong majority, but they have no faith at all in Anglican or Roman Catholic sects. But men must grant the rights of others to secure their own; and one reason why a minority is more likely to be right than a majority, is because it is [illegible] which a naturally selfish majority is too prone to exercise. Many political measures could be best tested on the principle of a Dutch accounting by letting the smallest number of votes carry it. If English legislation for the last three hundred years were examined by impartially impartial philosophers, it would be found that the minorities in Parliament were right four times in five. This is confessed in respect to Ireland, and to a considerable extent, in regard to England, in the present reform movements. If you ask why the minority is not right now I cannot answer you.

RETRENCHMENT AND ECONOMY.

The Government is very strong now with its measures of retrenchment and economy. Mr. LOWE is jubilant over his surplus, but will not spoil the occasion of the Budget night by any hint of its amount, or what he intends to do with it. The brewers have been to him to remove the tax on beer or to make it larger. It is now threepence a barrel, and there is no way of dividing such a small sum so as to get it from the consumers. If it were five shillings a barrel it might be managed. Then the farmers are urgent to have the malt tax removed. They want to be able to make their own malt, and feed it to their cattle. Now it is a high misdemeanor for any man but a licensed maltster to allow barley to sprout, and every bushel must pay its tax. Of malt consumed in this country in the form of beer and whisky, aside from export, there was, in 1867, 46,800,000 bushels. Each bushel makes on an average eighteen gallons of beer; in 1867, 843,840,000 gallons, which, at one shilling a gallon, the average price, comes to £42,192,000—say $211,000,000. So much food spoiled for drink; then you must count also the hops and the wasted labor; and then the mischief is only at its beginning. The annual tax on beer is about $35,000,000, but the whole cost and all its evil consequences may be considered a form of taxation.

The estimates of the year show a saving of several millions—something like two million pounds on the navy, and nearly as much on the army, with increased efficiency of both. For many years the Government dockyards have been very expensive, and very corrupt and wasteful. Send a ship off to the Pacific and she gotes for years with little cost for repairs. Once at home and there was a continual and very expensive tinkering. Hundreds of workmen have been discharged—hundreds of officers and clerks in all departments turned out to grass. The workmen have had some small compensations or been helped to emigrate; the clerks and officials have been well provided for. There is a good deal of grumbling. The army officers intend to carry their remonstrances to the foot of the throne; but Mr. LOWE, whom Mr. DISRAELI called "an inspired school-boy," likes nothing better than a chance to snub malcontents. The purchase system in the army is to be modified, not abolished, and in future there are to be no Ensigns—only Lieutenants. Flags are out of fashion, and no one is needed to carry them.

If an officer, heretofore, say a Lieutenant-Colonel, wished to leave the army he received from the Government the sum of £4,500, which was levied upon each grade advanced by his retirement. The Major succeeding him paid £1,300; Captain, £1,400; Lieutenant, £1,100; Ensign, £250, and the new Ensign £450. Now a young man appointed junior Lieutenant will pay £450, but no more until he is Captain, when he will have to pay £1,350. You expel members of Congress for selling army appointments—here the Government regulates what every officer is to pay for his first commission, and for each grade, in advance. Those who have plenty of money can go up rapidly, and become Generals in no time; those who cannot raise the funds may grow gray as Lieutenants. Patriotism is a luxury, and a man who wants to serve his country in a conspicuous fashion, either in Parliament, or the military or civil service, must pay for it. Honor, rank, position, being what men covet most, and this being a commercial country, they have their price.

The military force of this country in 1868 was estimated at 5,000 men and fifteen pieces of artillery for coast defense. It is now 88,225 regular troops, 29,000 reserves, and 250,000 militia and volunteers. The army has been reduced 24,000. The navy is considered at the highest point of efficiency, and very much an overmatch for that of any other country.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION.

Among the deputations which have harassed the much-enduring Home Secretary this week, was one of doctors, who are agitating for a reform in the mode of ascertaining the qualifications of medical practitioners. It has been supposed that American Governments were somewhat lax in this respect, and American diplomas are not in much favor in England, but I cannot see that the old country has any advantage over the new as to medical qualifications or requirements.

Mr. GRANGER informed Mr. BRUCE that there are a large number of men practicing in all parts of the country without any sort of legal qualification, while many persons are buried without a legal certificate. There are in the United Kingdom no less than nineteen bodies which can license men to practise medicine. There has been a medical council in existence about eleven years, but it seems to have done very little. The Government examinations for appointments as surgeons in the army and navy give some idea of the state of medical education. In 1865, of those who applied and who were already legally qualified, forty-seven in every hundred were rejected as incompetent. Since that time, as the Government requirements were better understood, there have been fewer rejections. One of the examiners says that sooner than leave soldiers and sailors to many of the diplomaed applicants, he would have left them without any doctors at all. Of late, great numbers of medical students have avoided the examinations at Apothecaries' Hall, by getting diplomas, generally at Edinburgh, and in a discussion in the Medical Council the other day, Sir D. CORRIGAN, of Dublin, openly accused D. A. WOOD, a Scottish member, of being "the representative of a body that sold one thousand licenses a year at £10 each, and so made £10,000 a year." And these practitioners are admitted to the honors of the higher grade of the profession, ranking as physicians, while better qualified men only rank as surgeons or general practitioners. The surgeon and medical man is simply a Mister; the Scotch graduate is an M. D., and can be called in consultations, and even presented at Court, and permitted to pay his homage to the Queen's Majesty.

AMERICAN TOPICS.

A communication in the Times on the "Decay of American Shipping" may be of some comfort to whom it may concern. The writer, a large purchaser of American ships during the war, says he lost heavily by the operation, and that the Americans could have bought back at a large profit. Then iron has so taken the place of wood, and steam of sailing vessels, that English ship-owners would be glad to get rid of their wooden ships at almost any price, and would pay all the damage caused by the Alabama, if they could only get as good a market for them as they gave the Americans. Protection, he thinks, has done them far more damage than hostile cruisers.

My idea is that, other things being equal, the price of food is the measure of the cost of all production. Now, America is a food-exporting country, sending at this time more wheat to England than any other. It ought, therefore, to be able to make everything, from ships to needles, cheaper than any food-importing country. With food, coal and iron enough, it is easy to import all the labor that is wanted. Cheap food makes cheap labor, and cheap labor should make everything cheap which it produces. But if high prices are any comfort, of course they must be maintained.

Here, for instance, is what cheap labor with ingenuity and taste will do. The Government has at the India Office a collection of Hindoo textile fabrics so superior to anything made here that they are preparing books of specimens for the education of all the manufacturing towns in England. The Indian goods are declared to be not only of remarkable durability but of altogether unrivaled beauty, alike in color and forms of decoration.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.... ALBANY, Thursday, March 24, 1870.

The following measures were reported:

The bill relative to the Supreme Court under the new judiciary article of the Constitution; reorganization of the Canal Board in favor of retaining tolls fifty per cent below the rates of 1868—special order for Wednesday next; the ordinary Canal Repair Appropriation bill; the bill relative to the Board of Assessors, Brooklyn.

FRAUDULENT VOTING.

Mr. GENET attempted to introduce an act to prevent fraudulent voting.

Mr. TWEED objected.

Mr. GENET said he was not surprised that the Senator objected.

The President.—(Interrupting)—Debate is out of order, objection being made the bill cannot be introduced.

INSPECTORS OF ELECTION.

Mr. M. NORTON moved to recommit the bill providing for the election of Inspectors of Election in Brooklyn, to the Judiciary Committee to give the minority a hearing.

Mr. CREAMER—I am glad that the subject of this bill has come up now, even in this form, because it gives an opportunity of calling the attention of Senators to the startling necessity that exists in the City of New-York for a new election law. The abuses that have sprung up some years prevailed at elections in the City absolutely demand some action of the Legislature, and I hope that the Committee of that body to which the matter may be referred will not hesitate to report at an early day such a bill as will reach the evils complained of and that we shall not adjourn without perfecting and passing it. We have there now a system of appointing Inspectors of Election that is a disgrace to our republican form of government. We have a system of hob-nobbing between Republicans so-called, and Democrats so-called, that has destroyed to a great extent every vestige of the Republican form of government and the liberty under it that formerly prevailed there.

We have a system which, if it be perpetuated, will enable the people who appoint and manipulate the Inspectors of Election, not only to still control the city and plunder its treasury, but also to control the Legislature of the State, as they have done in years past. Sir, the monopoly that is passed upon the appointment of the Inspectors of Election in New-York is most monstrous and tyrannical; it is a new species of boss rolling that has never existed in any form of government; a system under which men of the two great political parties of this country are ready to sacrifice whatever little principle they ever had to meet in common cause for common plunder; a system where so-called Democrats are willing to lie down in the dirt with so-called Republicans, each gang betraying their party for the time being for the sake of plunder. Surely such a system calls loudly for some action on the part of this Legislature to relieve the people of New-York, and the people of the entire State, from the outrages and oppression in this respect under which they suffer.

I know that these abuses have existed for a long time, and I have felt that it was my duty, and that of my colleagues to call attention to them when an opportunity should present itself. I know that a determined effort will be made by this gang of public robbers who have heretofore controlled the City of New-York, and the Legislature and other departments of the Government, to defeat any action calculated to disturb them. I know that they will fight hard against any law calculated to protect the purity of the ballot-box, because they exist only by fraud.

Give us a fair election law in New-York and you need not give us any new charter; we will be satisfied with the charter we have. Give the people of our City the chance to have their votes fairly received and counted, and they will right the wrongs they now suffer, and of which they so bitterly complain. But for Heaven's sake do not perpetuate the present system of appointing these Inspectors of Election. Do not continue this system which has made the City of New-York a disgrace to the country and the by-word and laughing-stock of those who sneer at Republican government.

Do something here to help us, who have made every sacrifice in this cause—who have braved the tyranny rampant in its den, and are ready to take the responsibility of something to help us to protect the purity of the ballot-box, and to give to the people of the first city of this country the right to elect their own officers of election. As I have said, efforts will be made, perhaps successfully for another year, to defeat a bill of this character, but they cannot succeed much longer. Perhaps it is not proper to propose to put amendments in relation to our City upon a bill which applies only to the City of Brooklyn, but we from New-York, who desire the reform of these abuses, must take every opportunity that is afforded to bring this most important subject to the attention of the Legislature; and I trust that all other legislation will be a nullity, and that laws are passed that will protect the purity of the ballot-box, and give the people of New-York in fact, what they have now only in name, a republican form of government.

Sir, what a farce it is for us to sit here creating commissions and passing hundreds of bills day after day to perfect the various departments of our Government, when the very foundation stone of a Republican Government is rotten to the core! What a farce it is for us to sit here and legislate as Representatives in a Republican Government, when the election system upon which such a Government rests has been undermined and is as corrupt as hell!

What a farce it is for us to sit here claiming to be part of a Republican State Government, when there are in this Legislature men who, perhaps, with a fair vote and a fair count would never have appeared here. I ask that immediately before they attend to any other legislation, the Committee will take action upon this important subject, so that we may perfect and pass a bill that will relieve the people from the tyrannical yoke that oppresses them, and from that power which stealthily seeks to control and has actually in part this year controlled the Legislature of this State.

Mr. BOWEN—I desire to ask the Senator from the Sixth, what is the present system of appointing or electing these Election Inspectors?

Mr. CREAMER—They are appointed by the Metropolitan Police Commission, which is made up of four gentlemen whose politics—the politics of some of them at least—it would be impossible to describe.

The motion to refer to the Judiciary Committee was adopted.

POLICE COMMISSIONER SMITH.

Mr. GENET offered a resolution reciting that, whereas the Metropolitan Police law prohibits a member of the Commission holding any other office, therefore, Resolved, That the Senate consider the Police Commissioner now held by HENRY SMITH, in violation to the statutes of the State, he and is declared vacant; also, that the two Houses, on the 6th of April, go into joint session to elect a Police Commissioner in place of said Henry Smith. The resolution was laid over under the rule.

The bill incorporating the Staten Island Bridge Company was passed.

The Senate then went into Executive Session. After a short session the doors were opened and the Senate took a recess until 7½ P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

The Senate reassembled at 7½ o'clock. The following bills were ordered to a third reading:

Relative to Fordham and Fulton avenues; amending the charter of the village of White Plains; appropriation of the Colored Orphan Asylum; an Industrial Reformatory Prison at Elmira; amending the charter of the Brooklyn Trust Company; incorporating the Manhattan Market Company of New-York; authorizing to have the laws of 1867 relative to State Prisons as to salaries of the officers thereof; providing for paying the principal and establishing and maintaining an institution for the support of disabled soldiers and sailors.

ASSEMBLY.

The following bills were passed:

Incorporating the Peabody National Benefit Company of New-York; incorporating the Criole Club of New-York; changing the name of the Young Men's Hebrew Association of New-York; granting powers to directors of corporations to convert certain indebtedness; authorizing the Aldermen and Supervisors of Brooklyn to raise moneys for the support of Brooklyn cemeteries; extending the time for collecting taxes in West Farms; vesting corporate powers of the Hebrew Benevolent Fuel Association of New-York in the Board of Directors; relative to the prosecution of Jackson Jaws; to improve Franklin avenue in Flatbush; to improve Fourth and Second avenues in New-Utrecht.

The House then took a recess until 7½ P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

Mr. FREAR reported the Brooklyn Police bill; Mr. JACOBS asked that the bill be made the special order for to-morrow.

Mr. ALVORD objected on the ground that he had serious doubts whether the Metropolitan Police District will be abolished this session; and he holdeth he knew of no reason why Brooklyn should have more consideration than any other locality.

Mr. JACOBS asked if he objected on behalf of his party or of his locality.

Mr. ALVORD replied that it was not for his party.

Mr. JACOBS then appealed to his sense of justice to give Brooklyn a hearing here. They only had come here asking to be released from the Metropolitan District. A bill earlier that provision was here, and if it was to be defeated let it be defeated at the earliest moment.

Mr. HUSTED said this House had refused to [illegible]

NEW-YORK YACHT CLUB.

The Entertainment Given—Toasts Drunk—Speeches.

A meeting of the New-York Yacht Club which held last evening at Delmonico's for the purpose of determining the conditions upon which Mr. ASHBURY, the owner of the English yacht Cambria, should challenge for the possession of the cup was by the Times stated. The question immediately under consideration was whether the New-York Yacht Club should challenge one vessel to race Mr. ASHBURY's yacht Cambria, or whether, as the America had been sailed by the whole squadron of the Royal Yacht Club, Mr. ASHBURY should not be required to enter the contest against the fleet of the New-York Yacht Club. The matter was felt to be one of grave importance, and the presence of the members who take an interest in the International race was in consequence very large, and all present manifested the deepest interest in the discussion. Commodore STEVENS presided, and Mr. MORTON acted as Secretary. The owners of all the well-known New-York yachts were present. Several of the members present took part in the discussion, but the principal speakers were Commodore STEVENS, Mr. SCHUYLER, Chairman of the Committee recently appointed to arrange the conditions for the race with Mr. ASHBURY, and Mr. ROSES H. GRINNELL. Some contended that it was not fair or reasonable to expect Mr. ASHBURY to enter his yacht against the whole New-York Yacht Club, and urged that it was as preposterous as to expect four Yankees to fight all the prize-fighters in the United States. This comparison caused some laughter. On the other hand it was urged that America had from the outset sailed against the whole Royal Yacht Club, and it was only fair to ask Mr. ASHBURY to race on the same terms. However, it resolved itself into a point of honor, as to whether the Committee had committed themselves to select one yacht from the New-York Yacht Club to race Mr. ASHBURY for the possession of the cup. It was contended that this would give the English yacht a great advantage over the terms on which the America had won the cup, and besides that, such a race would not determine the grand question at issue, namely, the relative superiority of the English and American yacht architecture. It was finally determined that the New-York Yacht Club was in no way bound by the correspondence which had taken place with Mr. ASHBURY, and on a vote being taken it was decided, by a majority of 18 to 1, that the Cambria should consider with all the schooner yachts of the New-York Yacht Club whom or how many should race against her.

The Midland Railway—Meeting at the Produce Exchange Yesterday.

An adjourned meeting of those interested in the Midland Railroad was held yesterday afternoon at the Produce Exchange, Mr. A. E. MASTERS in the chair.

The Chairman stated the object of the meeting to be to countenance an application, on the part of the Directors of the Road, for $1,500,000, in order to perfect the grade specially in Sullivan and Delaware Counties, as the value of the road had become apparent. A motion prevailed that the application to the Legislature be for a loan, and one to fix the interest at ten per cent was lost. Another to limit the loan to $1,500,000 was carried. After some discussion the following resolution was decided on:

Resolved, That in the judgment of this Exchange the appropriation by the Legislature of $1,500,000 and no more, as a loan to the Midland Railroad Company for the purpose of completing its road, would be at once a wise and judicious measure, and one to which the counties for which it is specifically designed, have some just claim from the State, in view of the great internal improvements which have been of little if any direct benefit to them; Provided always, that the Company give ample security for the money advanced and the payment of the principal and interest to be extended ten years from date of advance; as also for the annual payment of interest on the loan at the rate of six per cent. per annum.

Mr. GEORGE MEGRATH offered a resolution that a further appropriation be made by the State to drain the Jersey flats in the vicinity of Newark Bay; and on behalf of the Erie Railroad a further one of $2,000,000 to enable that Company to pay its arrearages of dividends. These were ruled out of order, and the meeting adjourned.

Suicide by a German.

MICHAEL NAU, of No. 45 Bayard-street, heard a shot last evening in an attic room occupied by a lodger named WM. LEADBECK. Before he could reach the room another shot was fired. The Sixth Ward Police were then notified, when Serg't BYRNES and Detectives WOOTHRIPPS proceeded to the premises and made an investigation. They found LEADBECK lying on the floor of his room, quite dead, he having deliberately shot himself through the heart. A six-barreled pepper-box pistol was found near the body. It appears that the deceased was a native of Germany, aged twenty-eight, and had been out of work for some time. He became very low spirited because he was compelled to live upon the earnings of his wife, so rushed upon death as a refuge from sorrow. Coroner KEENAN will hold an inquest today at the Franklin-street Police station.

The Sheepy Mother Tragedy.

The case of ISAAC V. W. BUCKHOUT was resumed yesterday morning in the Westchester County Court of Oyer and Terminer. At noon the full complement of jurors was obtained. The following are the names: James Purdon, Lewisboro; Robert Palmer, Mamaroneck; Oscar Wallace, Bedford; Thomas Barrett, Rye; J. Gregory, Rye; Charles E. Pickering, Bedford; John Pritchipe, Mortensia; Charles Bennett, Bedford; Walter F. Sands, White Plains; Henry B. Dearborn, Lewisboro; Robert Wilkinson, White Plains; Wm. H. Garthwaite, Greenburgh.

Mr. WM. C. BERGEN, of Brooklyn, of counsel for the defense, moved a postponement until Monday, on the ground that his associate Mr. GRANVILLE T. JERES was at present busy with the election fraud trial in Brooklyn.

District-Attorney VAN ZILE opposed the motion. A short consultation with the Court was then held, when Judge COCHRAN said: We do not think it right to postpone the case, now that the jury has been impaneled, simply because counsel is absent, when so much material evidence is present. The statement doctrine of the Court is that the case stand over until to-morrow at 11½ A. M.

Arrest of a Roving Blacksmith.

An Englishman of pleasing address and gentlemanly appearance, who is known by several aliases in different parts of this country, and principal case being FRANK W. ROBERTS, alias Edwards, alias Roberts, was arrested in Philadelphia, on Saturday, upon a charge of fraud. The particular case which entangled him in the toils of the law was founded upon a complaint made by a Mr. HOOGAN, a stationer, of Milwaukee, who, who alleges that in November, 1869, the prisoner was in his employ as a salesman, and having embezzled funds to the amount of $1,000, left for the East, and was finally discovered at Cambridge, Mass., where he was established in the stationery business as Simpson & Co. This discovery was made about a month ago, in consequence of Mr. HOOGAN having seen an announcement of the marriage of Roberts in a New-York paper, and the clew once struck was followed persistently until it ended in the arrested stated. During the pursuit it was found that ROBERTS was a cosmopolitan swindler of great adroitness, and his victims were found in great numbers in the City, Cambridge, Philadelphia and other places. His career has, however, now been closed, for the time at least, as he will be taken at once to Milwaukee for trial.

New-Jersey Methodist Episcopal Conference.

The New-Jersey Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is now holding its thirty-fourth annual session at Long Branch, Bishop SIMPSON presiding. The session commenced on Wednesday, when Rev. J. D. KINGSLEY was elected Secretary, and the opening business was transacted. Resolutions expressive of the sorrow occasioned by the death of Rev. Dr. MCCLINTOCK and Bishop THOMSON were adopted. The disciplinary question, "Who are the supernumerary preachers," was called up, and those at present on the list were continued in the same relation. The supernumeraries were also continued. A communication received from the West Jersey Conference, relative to the Sabbath question, and to the general disregard of the Sabbath, was received and referred to the Committee on the state of the Church.

The Steamer City of Brussels.

A Toronto telegram, under date of the 23d, stated that the City of Brussels steamed into the harbor of Halifax, on her way to New-York, ostensibly for a supply of coal, but really to avoid quarantine at New-York by landing passengers afflicted with small-pox.

Mr. DALE, the agent of the line, states that this report is incorrect. Capt. KENNEDY, of the City of Brussels, reports strong north-west gales (the equinox), and fearing that he might have insufficient coal to reach New-York called at Halifax and there received 400 tons.

Extensive Fire in New-Brunswick.

The hardware store of J. BUCKALEW & SON, No. 207 Burnet-street, New-Brunswick, N. J., together with two smaller buildings, Nos. 209 and 211 adjoining, were partially destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss is about $15,000. The loss of BUCKALEW & SON is fully covered by insurance in the following companies: Ætna, of Hartford, $5,000 on stock and $2,000 on building; Jersey City, of Jersey City, $5,000 on stock; Mutual, of New-Brunswick, $2,000 on building; American, of Newark, and Fireman's, of Newark, $2,000 each on stock.

BERNTANO has received the Graphic, which contains a continuation of the new series of "Graphic America," the Illustrated London News, Punch, the Academy, Nature, and a number of other popular publications—all on sale at his convenient store.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The attendance at the Exchange Sales-room yesterday was very good, but no great spirit was displayed in the biddings. E. H. Ludlow & Co. disposed of a considerable amount of city property under the direction of DANIEL P. TRAUMAN, Jr., Referee, in the partition of the estate of the late Mr. DONAHOE, at the suit of ANN DONAHOE, one of the heirs. Full particulars of the sale are contained in the catalogue below.

Of seven parcels of property previously advertised by MULLER, WILKINS & Co., only three were sold. The three-story brick house, 108 Waverley-place, between Washington-square and Sixth-avenue, brought $12,100. The lot, 25 feet 7 inches by 100 feet, on the west side of Forty-second-street, which is a gap in the block between 8th and 9th-avenues, was sold for $16,200. While a four-story brick house, 210 West 42d-st., was sold for $9,100. The three-story brick house, 108 Waverley-place, was struck off at $11,000.

Johnston & Miller sold, by order of mortgagee, the five-story marble stoop house, 19 Greenwich-street, for $31,200. The property is 25 feet 6 inches by 100 feet 3 inches, and is over the Trinity church property on City Hall-place. The three-story brick house, which occupies a gap in the Sixth-avenue block, between 18th and 19th-sts., known as No. 108, 25 feet 10 inches by 100 feet, was also sold, with the adjoining lot, for $14,400. Other sales were made by the same firm on behalf of parties in enforced ownership.

Henry J. Ludlow sold, by order of mortgagee, the property in Brooklyn, consisting of a large and elegant residence on Clinton-avenue, 100 feet south of Gates-avenue. The premises extend 100 feet on Clinton-avenue and 100 feet on Vanderbilt-avenue, and are 200 feet deep. The property is a large and elegant residence. The premises were sold subject to a mortgage of $30,000. The entire property was sold for $[illegible]. The property was sold for $[illegible] per foot.

PRINCETON ALUMNI DINNER.

Addresses by Ex. McCosh, Rev. Dr. Adams, Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, Hon. Harris Brewster and Others.

The annual meeting and dinner of the Princeton College Alumni residing in New-York and vicinity, took place at Delmonico's, corner of Fifth-avenue and Fourteenth-street, last evening. The cozy, yet genial and intellectual entertainment was presided over by W. C. ALEXANDER, Esq., President of the Equity Life Insurance Company, and a partly son of Princeton. On the right of the President sat the venerable Dr. McCOSH, President of Princeton, while among the notable guests scattered through the banquet-hall, were Robert Bonner, Esq., Dr. Parkes, Rev. Dr. Adams, Rev. Dr. John Hall, Ex-Judge Hosson, Charles N. Black, "Pet" Halsted, Hon. Samuel Hersh, Henry A. Cram, Profs. Duffield and Schenck, of Princeton College, Prof. Webb, of New-York College, J. C. Carter, Esq., Theodore L. Cuyler, Benjamin Harris Brewster, Esq., and others. The hall was suitably decorated, and over the chair of the President hung his likeness, drawn in ink by W. B. HOWELL, of No. 861 Broadway, and attracted considerable attention as a work of art.

After the feast had been appropriately discussed and the ladies had commenced to light up the banquet with their presence, the President called the guests to order and opened the intellectual exercises by calling for the reading of letters of apology received from President Grant, Gov. Hoffman, Gov. Randolph, of New-Jersey; Gen. Belknap, Secretary Robeson, John C. Green, Martin Ryan, Prof. Aitken and others.

Before proposing the regular order of toasts, the President congratulated the members of the Princeton Alumni present on another annual reunion, wherein they might rekindle their reverence and respect for their common literary mother and for each other, and urged the cultivation by each in the future of a kindly interest in their brother graduates, and encouragement and fidelity to Dear Alma Mater.

"The President of the United States" was the first regular toast, and was drank with enthusiasm.

"Our Alma Mater" was responded to by Dr. JAMES MCCOSH, the President of Princeton College. Other Steward of the household of their Alma Mater, and before coming here he inquired if she had any message to send. Standing upon the heights of Princeton, their Alma Mater sends her warmest greeting to all her children there assembled. She never forgets them, always takes joy in their welfare, and mourns when any evil befalls them. She thinks, also, that President GRANT has displayed wisdom in selecting two of her sons for most important positions in his Administration—an act whereby he (the President) had honored his Administration as much as he had honored Princeton. He then went into the present condition of the College and its improvements, present and prospective, including the gymnasium, of which Mr. BONNER is the patron, and gave assurance that the college took much pleasure in the union of the Old and New School Presbyterian Churches. He complimented Chancellor GREEN on his expenditure of about $60,000, in adding much-needed improvements to the college buildings. He referred also to many new studies which have been added to the collegiate course, but at the same time gave assurance that they it intended to adhere to the thorough study of the ancient classics, and would take care that all who graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, shall leave thorough scholars. Here corps of teachers had no superiors either in this country or Europe—all earnest and thoroughly qualified to the guidance of the students. He concluded with the assurance that the Alma Mater cherishes undiminished and undying attachment of her graduates, with whose fame and that of their friends she beholds a great career before her.

"Our Sister Colleges" was responded to in appropriate speeches by President WEBB, on behalf of the New-York College; by J. C. CARTER, Esq., on behalf of Harvard, and by Rev. Dr. ADAMS, on behalf of Yale.

To "The Clergy," Rev. THEODORE L. CUYLER responded in one of his usual eloquent efforts. Paying a passing tribute to the temperance cause, and proposing the health of the ministry in water "as clear as Dr. MCCOSH's intellect," he reviewed the history of a long and illustrious line of the graduates of Princeton, who in after life honored their Alma Mater and the cause of religion in the which they lived and labored. Princeton College as he had examined, had, having such a track and such a driver, she would be able to make better time in the future than her esteemed patron ROBERT BONNER ever made behind Dexter.

HON. HARRIS BREWSTER, Esq., late Attorney-General of Pennsylvania, responded to the toast of the "Bar." He referred to the early association of the clergy and legal practitioners, when their professions were almost synonymous. Now, he said, also, the clergy ought to be present where justice was administered. He recalled a remarkable occasion, somewhat similar to this, when amid the assembled members of the Bar, Hon. WM. M. EVARTS paid a glowing tribute to the profession of law, and reprobated in words of withering scorn the unjust Judge; sentiments which awoke the sympathy and applauding assent of every member present. The present loose system of admission to the Bar tended to deteriorate and dishonor that high and noble calling. A carpenter, or mason, or painter, or tailor, or any other humble mechanic, must serve a time to his trade; but men are admitted to the profession now who never served a day trade, except, perhaps, vilany. He paid a glowing tribute to the colleges of the country, and the educational facilities afforded from which such student came forth possessing not only learning, but refinement and scrupulous honor.

Several other toasts were given and responded to, and the exercises having been enlivened with song, sentiment and music until a late hour, the one hundred and twenty guests gradually dispersed, evidently highly entertained and pleased with themselves, each other, and all mankind beside.

HUMBUG.

Lecture by Rev. Mr. Hepworth—Hits at the Charlatanism of the Age.

A large audience were assembled at Dr. CHAPIN'S Church, last evening, to listen to a lecture on "Humbug," by the eloquent pastor of the Church of the Messiah, for the benefit of the Chapin Home for the Aged and Infirm. After some excellent music, Mr. MARSHALL introduced the lecturer, who said that the history of the world was but the biography of a great giant with his peculiarities of childhood, sentimentality and religious belief. This was his age of common sense. Contemplating the great works of today who could look into the future without shaded eyes—its glorious opened to clear with a single atom of the world, of his conservatism. There was a very profound and detailed connection between the lowest man and the highest animal. Every man had something of the brute in him. Men were governed by passion, prejudice and impulse rather than by reason. Public opinion set as a dreadful despotism more potent than the sway of the most powerful monarch. Men don't like to be laughed at. Mrs. Grundy's power after all sits on the throne. Man was great on one side and little on the other. A man was both a giant and a pigmy at the same time. The speaker then described the characteristics of different classes of men. There were those who were simply an embodied kick from beginning to end. He described, humorously, the characteristics of the successful statesman, the politician, the soldier, the author, but he visits Europe and trembles before royalty. That kind of a man is a republican. There was one of him in the world Indian, the slave, or an intelligent audience he had but one theme—what he said to NAPOLEON and what NAPOLEON said to him. It was a dangerous thing for a man to go to Europe. And so we humbug both cured yes and others. The greatest prerogative of human nature was humbug.

The speaker then confessed to the fears and tremblings he experienced even now, thanks to the goblin stories of his childhood, and said that he confessed his fears been use those before him were just like him. The magician drew a larger audience than the greatest scientific man of the age. The same effect was seen in the silence of the legitimate drama. If a manager could find artists whose brains were in their heels, and whose dresses began a little too late and ended too soon, his success was assured. To tell nothing but the truth, again, had never been done since Adam ate on the banks of the Euphrates. Men tell things as they ought to happen and not as they do actually happen. And the worst of it was that they carried their delusions so far that they actually believe them.

He told of the Colonel of his regiment, who, on being ordered to the front, in ten minutes was afflicted with a mortal disease. The order being rescinded, the "charlatan Colonel" appeared at "dress parade." A negro cook could drive him from the field with a withe. The same Colonel was now in Boston, telling of his great services to his country.

For two hundred years all Europe believed in the "philosopher's stone;" view the grand and noble heroism of our ancestors, and their childish superstitions. Look into politics for half a minute and see humbug. Theoretically, as you rise in political rank, men increase in greatness until you have giants in Congress and in the State Legislature. Yet politics was like a boiling caldron, in which the scum came to the top. New-York was a glorious example of the perfection of republicanism. A man began life by swindling others to death and kept a gambling saloon, and because he was worth half a million of greenbacks, he was a Provost Marshal Congress, and stamped disgrace on the Nation's Legislature. Why did not New-York rise in its might? Why not swear that there should be honest men in the Legislature and the Administration? Then we should not have to pay more than half as many taxes. During the war he was sent to look after a Provost Marshal who thought it was pleasant to die for his country. He thought so too. Out of $1,200 a year this man saved half a million, and now you can see him daily on the avenue. Mr. HEPWORTH then described some of the humbugs he had seen "square face." Sometimes other humbugs broke in the square face, and who to get into society went to Brown. [Laughter.] New-York was sending free beginning to end. But the world was not all sentiment, for it took off its hat to an honest man. His lecture should not be to that their souls were made of clay. Whatever they did they should do it with all their soul and let their soul be a decent one.

Newark M. E. Conference—Second Day's Session.

At the second day's session of the Newark M. E. Conference, yesterday, at St. Paul's Church, South Sixth-street, Rev. J. S. CHADWICK was appointed Treasurer of the Church Extension Society, and reports from the various districts were rendered.

The reports of the assessments and receipts for Conference claimants, consisting of the widows and orphans of deceased ministers and superannuated and worn preachers.

The questions fixed by the ritual were then asked and answered in the following order: "Who are the superannuates?" "Who are the superannuated preachers?" "Who are the deceased?"

A telegram was received from the New-Jersey Conference, now in session in Long Branch, saying: "We dance about. More particulars soon." It is probable that the assessment will not take place this session.

An address was delivered by Rev. Dr. BUTLER on the growing influence of the Roman Catholic religion in the country, and a committee of five was appointed to confer with Dr. BUTLER on the subject of the Protestant religion throughout the world.

In the afternoon a sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. BUTLER, representing the American and Foreign Christian Union, and the first missionary sent by the Methodist Church to India. He gave a lengthy and eloquent description of the district in India in which the Mission is located, and an account of the work performed. It now numbers over 700 converts, ninety-five local preachers, forty-five teachers, twelve and twelve schools. The preacher closed with an earnest and interesting appeal to the churches to sustain the missionary cause.

In the evening, in the Hedding Methodist Episcopal Church, the anniversary meeting of the Missionary and Church Extension Societies was held.

Rev. A. M. PARKER, Treasurer of the Missionary Society, presented the financial statement for the past year, which showed the amounts collected in the various districts to be as follows: Newark, $7,013 16; Jersey City, $4,118 60; Elizabeth, $2,726 91; Morristown, $2,369 75, and New-Brunswick, $1,383 88; total, $18,962 24, being a decrease from last year of about $1,200.

The first speaker of the evening was Rev. S. H. OPDYKE, who delivered an address on behalf of the Missionary Society.

Rev. W. CHADWICK, Financial Secretary of the Church Extension Society, reported the following collections during the past year: Newark, $250 26; Jersey City, $223; Elizabeth, $139 35; Morristown, $84; Newton, $79 45. Total $1,224 06.

A short and interesting address in behalf of the Society was delivered by Gen. J. H. HUNTON, who urged the building of churches from patriotic as well as from Christian grounds. The Conference then adjourned until this morning.

The American Institute Polytechnic Branch—Steam Boilers—High or Low Pressure.

A regular meeting of the Polytechnic Branch of the American Institute was held last evening at Room No. 24, Cooper Institute, Prof. TILLMAN in the chair. After the reading of several papers in regard to new inventions, and remarks thereon by various members, the discussion in regard to steam boilers, already commenced upon several occasions before the Association, was taken up.

Mr. MCGINNESS presented a model of a new steam boiler, for which he claimed, special advantages.

Mr. MONTGOMERY said the time had come when a decision must be made practically between high and low pressure steam boilers. He had been on steam-boats on the Mississippi where, on the high pressure, they carried as much as 400 pounds. Boilers, if they were properly constructed, would stand any reasonable pressure. On the Alabama River the Captain had adopted the high-pressure system, carried 600 pounds. The result was that his boat was blown to atoms, and sixty lives were lost. Still he was said by some that the higher the pressure the less the danger, if the boiler is properly constructed with sound materials.

Mr. EMERY in a somewhat manner undertook to demonstrate the waste there is in operating on the high-pressure system. By means of mathematical calculations on the black-board he showed that in any event there was only seven per cent. difference between high and low pressure, and that this seven per cent. gain in high pressure is more than counterbalanced in the waste of fuel, and the strain on the boiler. The true mean, he said, of pressure might be taken at eighty pounds as the minimum and 100 pounds as the maximum. Nothing could be gained by carrying the pressure beyond 100 pounds. The discussion was not concluded when the hour for adjournment arrived.

Reception at the Five Points Mission School.

The pupils of the Five Points Mission School gave a reception, yesterday afternoon, to their friends and patrons. The infant class, numbering about one hundred and twenty children, many of whom are hardly able to speak intelligibly, gave an exhibition of the progress they have made in the veriest rudiments of learning, under the tuition of their earnest and devoted teachers. The choral exercises with which they favored the audience, were performed with admirable precision.

These harmonic renderings were varied by simple recitations, adapted to the limited comprehension of the children, and by calisthenic exercises, which evinced that the little ones were under a most excellent system of training. The exercises of the higher classes were of a character that showed, of course, a higher degree of development, and spoke loudly in favor of the system under which they are taught. Anthems, dialogues, solos, and short addresses, interwoven with calisthenics, made up an entertainment which could not fail to impress every listener with the fact that this institution is doing a glorious work. GEO. W. BUNGAY made a short address of congratulation and encouragement to the pupils, after which the company separated, highly pleased with what they had heard and seen.

Latest Abous Collector Bailey.

There were no new developments yesterday in the case of the fugitive Collector. Supervisor DUTCHER was engaged nearly all the morning in examining his accounts, and found that his defalcation would at least reach $100,000, but was unable to ascertain the precise amount. Three clerks connected with the Treasury Department at Washington, arrived during the day and were set to work on the books and accounts in the office. A report was circulated yesterday afternoon to the effect that Col. WHEELEY, of the Secret Service, had captured Mr. BAILEY, but that the Government authorities wished to suppress the fact for the present, in consequence of some startling revelations which he had made about several high officials implicating them in his frauds. On making inquiry at the proper source the report was found to be incorrect.

Ireland as a Civilizer—Lecture by Dr. J. W. Rogers.

DR. J. W. ROGERS, late of Memphis, Tenn., last evening repeated, at the Cooper Institute, his lecture, delivered about a week ago, (the substance of which was then given in the TIMES,) on "Catholic Ireland Giving Civilization to England and America." A large and very intelligent audience was present on the occasion, and the speaker and his "illustrations" were repeated to the full. Having been introduced by Very Rev. E. PEARCE, Vice-General of the Archdiocese, the speaker, after loosely remarking as to his peculiar ethnological condition, (having traveled for three days and nights in order to fulfill his engagements,) proceeded to rehearse the ancient history of the Irish people, both before and after the advent of St. Patrick, claiming that they were naturally a people of genius and that they were the civilizers of Europe. He instanced the founding of the two great Universities of Paris and Padua by the Emperor CHARLEMAGNE, the direction of each of which was given to an Irishman. Alluding to England, he claimed that the high civilization of that country, the foundation of which was laid by ALFRED the Great, was due to the Irish Professors whom he brought from the University of Armagh, and who gave the impetus to English literature. He spoke also of the labors of the Irish in America, of their promptness in flying to arms during the Revolutionary War, and of the regard they made for bravery during the late rebellion, and closed by predicting that their influence would be felt for good throughout all time.

Sale of the D'Hauvette Collection of Paintings.

The sale of the D'Hauvette collection of paintings at BARNUM'S gallery, was completed last evening. The grand picture by Ferdinand Pauwels, "Boccacio at the Court of Naples," was purchased by Mr. Milbanke for $1,310, and Van Lerius' "Esmeralda and Dian," by Mr. Moller for $1,200. The remainder of the catalogue sold as follows: "Wood Gatherers," by Van Schen, $140; "Indian Maid's Toilet," by Jerome Thompson, $175; "Going to Church," by Van Hove, $260; "The Village Fair," by Tonnelat, $155; "The Pet Kittens," by Lansdale, $210; "The Deserted Home," by J. O. Eaton, $220; "Saturday," by H. Moller, $400; "Reading the Manuscript," by Acgard, $205; "Scene on the Potomac," by A. H. Wyant, $200; "Engagement Ring," by Friedrichsen, $205; "Tent in the Desert," by David Joy, $260; "Landscape," by Sonntag, $105; "Will you Please, Mammy?" by Portielje, $260; "Palermo," by Kuhnert, $185; "The Piano," by Lansdale, $135.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

A disturbance occurred at Wednesday night at the house of Michael Whelan, at No. 400 Washington-street, when Patrick KELLY and his brother Sam, of No. 50 West Thirty-third-street, attempted to force their way in. John KELLY was dangerously wounded on the head by a bottle hurled by Mrs. Whelan through the plate glass, and he was removed to Bellevue Hospital in a critical condition. The Police arrested the saloon keeper and Patrick CHARLES BRENN, WM. CONNELLY, JOHN SHANAGAN, and JOHN DONOVAN. All of the prisoners were yesterday arraigned before Justice Cornell at the Tombs, and remanded.

The offices of the Collector of the Fourth Internal Revenue District, Gen. ALFRED PLEASONTON, have been transferred to Wall-street, over the People's Bank. Mr. Pleasonton assumes charge of the Thirty-second District. His four deputies go with him. Col. CLIFTON THOMPSON, Col. BULLARD, Col. THURSTELL and Major GOODRICH. There is a great rejoicing in the Thirty-second District at the coming of Gen. PLEASONTON.

The women of this City are invited by CATHARINE E. BEECHER, Secretary of the American Woman's Educational Association, to meet the Managers of that Society to hear of heavy sufferings of multitudes of women, which are little realized by the prosperous, and also to consider various modes of relief, which all women can approve and aid, and which are speedy, safe and Scriptural, especially those aiming to elevate the honor of domestic employments, to train woman more highly for her distinctive profession as chief educator of childhood and prime minister of the family state, and also to prepare her for the honorable independence in various employments suited to her sex. The meeting will be at Steinway Hall, Monday, March 26, at 11 o'clock A. M.

Among the passengers who sailed yesterday in the Cunard steamer Tripoli for Europe were Sir BRAGE BRIDGE, member of Parliament; Gen. Lafayette McLaws and Gen. Longstreet, staff in the Mexican war; Lieut.-Col. Hunt and Major MASON, of Virginia. These officers go to Egypt, to enter the service of the Viceroy, whose agent in this City is commissioning Ex-Federal and Ex-Confederate officers as regimental commanders in his service. Gens. LORING and HILY, and Gen. Stephen Moulton, accompanied, have arrived in Egypt, and have assumed their commands.

A meeting of the owners of property on Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth and Thirtieth streets was held last evening at Millemann's Hall, at the corner of Seventh-avenue and Twenty-sixth-street, to take further action to prevent the laying of the Stew Improvement pavement in those streets. A committee of three was appointed to consult with other organizations of the same kind with a view to co-operating for their common object of opposing the course of the Common Council; and a committee of two on each block was named to collect the necessary funds from the property owners interested and pay the same in to the treasurer of the organization.

The mammalian beasts of the field and forest; the mechanism of progression in earth, air and water; swimming, walking, flying, leaping and climbing; the gorilla and other monkeys, as contrasted with man, will be fully treated by E. W. HAWKINS, in his lecture on "Science of Natural History" before the Young Men's Christian Association, this evening.

The Schleswig-Holstein Society of this City, Mr. HERMAN RIEF President, have resolved the anniversary of the Rise of the people of Schleswig-Holstein against Danish rule in 1863, at the Harmony Rooms in Essex-street, last night. The entertainment consisted of a ball, the pleasures of which were enhanced by the singing of several choruses by the German singing society Uhlandbund. Prof. HERMAN WIRACH made an able speech on the occasion in commemoration of the event celebrated.

At 6 o'clock last evening a fire occurred in the rear of second floor of No. 89 John-street, occupied by WATERMAN & CONT, job printers, who sustained a loss of $2,000. A similar loss was sustained by ALBERT FULLER & SON, plumbers, on the first floor. SCHAFFER & BUMMER, on the second floor, and the third and fourth floors, loss $1,000. The building was damaged to the extent of $600.

Troop E, of the Third Regiment Cavalry, N. G. S. N. Y., Capt. D. RUNNS, held their twenty-third annual ball at the Union Assembly Rooms, corner of Grand and Elizabeth streets, last night, which was well attended and a very pleasant affair.

ISRAEL C. LAWRENCE, executed a new bond for $2,000 before Commissioner SHIELDS yesterday, requiring him to appear for trial on a charge of having removed tobacco from a warehouse in an improper manner.

Last night the Irish Republican Central Club elected Hon. HORACE GREELEY an honorary member of their Association.

A lottery dealer, named CHARLES MAHL, gave bail in $600, before Commissioner SHIELDS yesterday, to answer a charge of violating the Revenue law.

The report concerning the destruction of valuable records by the fire at Castle Garden was incorrect. A few reports of any kind were carried off the first floor, but most of the valuable were slightly damaged by water. The fire, which at one time threatened the destruction of the entire premises, was checked and extinguished with but slight damage, owing to the energy and intelligence of the Fire and Police Departments.

The sailing ship Flowers, which left this port for the City of Rio Janeiro, reached the Thames in safety, but saw nothing of the missing steamer on the way.

Dr. M. G. ECHEVERRIA writes us contradicting the statement that he is willing to swear that REYNOLDS, the murderer, is of weak mind, and ought to be classified with idiots.

THOMAS GARDINER, a sailor, was arrested yesterday on a charge of stealing a bundle of clothing from a wagon belonging to H. B. CLAFLIN & CO., as it stood in West Broadway. Justice SCOTT held the prisoner for trial.

JOHN MCKENNELL, a man employed in PATRICK MALONE'S Base-ball, at No. 369 West Twenty-second-street, yesterday morning to force down a quantity of oyster-shells in preparing on them. The meat gave way, and the unfortunate man fell into the glowing kiln. It was not until nearly all the contents of the kiln had been removed that the charred remains were recovered. He leaves behind a wife and two children. Coroner FLYNN will hold an inquest. The deceased had been sixteen years in the Kiln business.

PATRICK CAMPBELL was thrown from his coach yesterday in Thirty-first-street, his horses running away, and had his shoulder dislocated. He was taken to his home at No. 48 West Washington-place.

A fire occurred last evening in KOEHLER & SON'S packing-box factory, No. 87 West Twenty-first-street, when a damage of $250 was occasioned.

BROOKLYN.

JOHN HOWARD comes up before the Council of Oyer and Terminer, this morning, to answer to the charge of murdering THEODOR RUYER on the 16th of October last. The case possesses special interest, since the evidence against him entirely consists in the auto-mortem declarations of the murdered man. It is said an alibi will be proved.

The suits of the new Williamsburg and Flatbush Railroad to be from South Seventh-street ferry, opposite Grand-street, New-York, through Division, Lee and Nostrand avenues, to Prospect Park, and vice versa, have been tracks of twelve miles each road. It is the continuation of the "Green Car" line of New-York, and is the direct route to Prospect Park, and by a proposed connection, to Coney Island. It places the Union and Capitoline Skating Ponds and Base-ball Grounds. The contractors have commenced work on it, and have engaged to put it in running order in May. The directors are J. C. Hazelton, President; E. Bailey, Secretary; J. C. Oatman, R. S. Merrill, C. H. Wilkins.

NEW-JERSEY.

Yesterday morning the body of a man named RICHARD BACON was found in the river at the foot of Bay-street, Jersey City. He had been employed as watchman by DUSOM & HENDRICKS, contractors, who are constructing a dock at that place. It is supposed he was blown off a narrow plank which he had to cross. Coroner BURNS will hold an inquest Saturday afternoon.

In reply to a communication addressed to Gov. RANDOLPH by JOHN B. HAGERT, Collector of City Revenue in Jersey City, on the subject of the bill recently passed by the Legislature exempting from taxation the property of the New-Jersey Railway Company in Jersey City, the Governor declines to withhold his approval of the measure, stating that it would be antagonistic to the purpose of the authority under which he holds his office, and violative of the spirit of our form of government for the Executive to be constantly in the exercise of the negative of "veto" against the expressed purpose of a majority of the Senate and House of Assembly.

The hat manufacturers of Newark and Orange, who are losers to the extent of $40,000 by the failure of Messrs. WELL & ROSENBURG, of New-York, sent a Committee to Baltimore a few days ago to ascertain whether they had been the victims of a fraud. The deputation has returned and report that the firm of Well, Rosenburg & Co., formerly purchased goods in Baltimore, by the firm were shipped immediately to another firm in Baltimore, and thence to Charleston, with the evident design on the part of WELL & ROSENBURG to defraud their creditors. The liabilities of the firm are said to be $250,000. The manufacturers of Orange and Newark express the hope that the assets will pay fifty per cent. of indebtedness, in which case they will be satisfied to let the matter rest.

The Republicans of Hoboken have elected a new City Executive Committee, consisting of the following gentlemen: Charles Chamberlain, John Livsey, Gordon Farmer, of the First Ward; W. C. The Morris Canal is to be opened on the 26th instant. It would now be open for business but for the fact that the blasting operations of the Delaware, Lackawana and Western Railroad Company, near Little Falls prevents the letting in of the water.

A suit affecting the rights of holders of life insurance policies has been commenced by THOMAS JOHNS, a liquor-dealer of Newark, N. J., against a Brooklyn insurance company. Johns held a policy of $2,000 upon the life of the late ISAAC HEWKING, the Newark lawyer who died not long since in the Essex County Jail. The policy was issued to Johns about three before Hewkin's death for the benefit of Johns, to liquidate a debt. The Company refused payment after the death of the insured, upon the ground that the policy was issued upon the representations by Johns and Hewkins that the latter was a person of abstemious habits, whereas the truth was that he was a confirmed drunkard.

The officers of the New-Jersey Railroad Company made an investigation, yesterday, into the charges of brutality by Rev. Mr. Ely, of Newark, against a gate-keeper in the employ of the Company at Jersey City depot. It appears that Mr. Ely had placed his ticket in his hat-band and that in passing through the gate the ticket appeared on the side where it could not be seen by the gate-keeper. Mr. Ely made no explanation when asked to show his ticket, but pushed through, and in doing so tore one button from his overcoat.
